WHEELER HITS STATE QUOTA DRAFT SYSTEM

Urges Immediate Physical Examinations For All Registrants.

WANTS BILL CHANGED

Senator Says Men Coming Up For Induction 'Don't Know Where They Stand.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON - Sen. Burton K Wheeler, (D., Mont.) today proposed abolition of selective service's state quota system and immediate physical examination of all draft registrants "so that we'll all know exactly where we stand."

Wheeler said he would seek those and other changes in the draft system when the house-approved Kilday bill, designed to put fathers at the bottom of the draft list, comes up in the senate.

Here are Wheeler's explanations of the "loopholes" in the Kilday bill which he seeks to close:

Quota system — "We've been raising more than 3,000 separate armies, on a county-by-county basis. The Kilday system is an improvement by cutting it to 48 state armies. But it still makes possible the drafting of fathers in one state while there is an ample supply of single men in another. That ought to be corrected by a law prohibiting the drafting of fathers anywhere in the United States while eligible single men are available."

Physical examination - "Registrants now don't know whether they will be accepted by the army until they have reported for induction—often after they have given up their jobs and made special arrangements for their families. I would give the final physical examination to all draft registrants, regardless of age or martial status, immediately. It would remove the uncertainty in the minds of most registrants."

Size of army -- "They still haven't proven to me that we need an army of 11,000,000 able-bodied men. It stands to reason that a lot of them can't possibly be used as combat troops. I favor legislation forbidding an 11,000,000 man armed force this year."

Men over 38—"I oppose the army's rule against taking men over 38. Those without home dependencies might as well take over the desk jobs rather than send some young father to the

Gather Two and A Half Tons of Cans In One Day

Mansfield housewives yesterday contributed approximately two and a half tons of tin cans to the nation's war program as the delayed salvage drive got under way in the city.

With yesterday's collections in the First ward exceeding expectations, the collectors moved into the Second ward today and planned to go back later to the First ward to pick up what they had missed there.

The schedule calls for two days in each of the city's six wards, and L. L. Linham, city garbage department superintendent, who is in charge of the can salvage, said he planned to maintain the schedule, returning later to collect any cans that were missed the first time around.

He said cans were not placed at the curb at a number of homes until after the truck passed yesterday, making it necessary to double back. He urged contrib-

RAPS 'SMEAR'

Spangler Says New Deal Uses Huge Propaganda Scheme.

CONCORD, N. H. —(AP)—Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican national committee, asserted today a propaganda machine had been built up by the New Deal through "the hiring of thousands of experts in this field and the spending of millions of dollars," and that this country had seen character assassination —the smear—made an almost accepted form of political activity."

"And today this un-American deviltry is being aimed at the heart of the congress of the United States," he declared.

County War Loan Up To $2,226,054

Third of $6,649,000 Quota Reached In First Two Days.

Mounting subscriptions to the Richland county second War Loan drive brought the campaign $2,226,054.95 closer to its $6,649,000 quota today.

War bond sales Monday and Tuesday totaled almost a third of the entire quota. Non-bank sources purchased $927,336.20 on Monday and $498,718.75 on Tuesday making a total of $1,426,054.95 for the two days. Bank purchases amounted to $500,000 on Monday and $300,000 on Tuesday making a total of $800,000 during the two-day period.

Subscriptions for yesterday totaled $798,718.75 while for Monday they totaled $1,427,336.20.

"We are quite pleased with the response to the War Loan drive," said H. G. Brunner, co-chairman of the drive, "but there is still a big job to be done." He said that many of the factories are organizing campaigns within their own plants and the rural organization and farm-to-farm canvass is beginning to show results.

Brunner indicated that the figures on bank purchases are only partial since they can only be estimated and will not be definitely determined until April 19 when banks will learn from the government what bids will be allowed.

Of the three coupon bonds which are being offered for sale, the greatest amount of purchases by non-bank sources have been of 2 per cent treasury notes with a total sale to date of $594,000. G bonds, among the registered bonds being sold, have had the greatest sale totaling $121,600.

At a meeting last night the women's committee met with representatives of 60 women's clubs to plan the $150,000 campaign of that group. The represented organizations took quota averaging $3,000 each. These quotas were set forth in the form of equipment which the bonds they sell will buy for the men in the armed forces. Some of the clubs have agreed to sell enough bonds to equip 1000 men with shoes, others the same number of fighting men with field jackets. Already $10,000 has been subscribed by the women's organizations.

Also planning a special drive as a part of the county campaign are the Knights of Columbus. The Knights will hold a bond rally at the organization home on West Fourth street Thursday at 8 p. m., as a part of their effort to raise $10,000 toward the total quota. Moving pictures of the war will be shown and representatives of the various banks will be present with bonds to make sales at the meeting. All members were urged by lodge officials to redeem their defense stamp book for bonds at this time.

NABS TWO BOYS

State Patrolmen Arrest Them After Stolen Car Chase.

Two youthful Toledoans were in custody of Toledo police today after being captured in a stolen car by Mansfield state highway patrolmen yesterday on U. S. Route 42, near Lexington.

The youths, one 16 and the other 17, were spotted by patrolmen in the stolen car, a 1940 model, driving at a high rate of speed. They were chased approximately three miles and nearly made good their escape when they pulled into the filling station after momentarily eluding the patrolmen. They were apprehended however, and confessed taking the car from a Toledo parking lot Monday afternoon, officers said.

Patrolmen reported that the boys purchased gasoline at filling stations in Genoa and Ashley and drove away without paying.

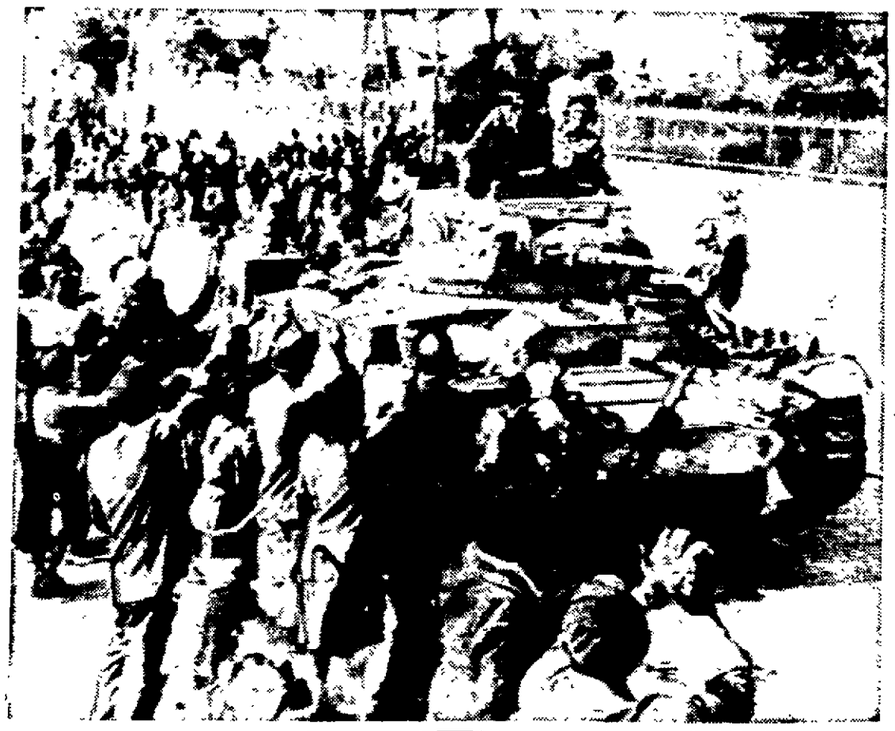
WLB Approves Adjustments at Goodyear Plant.

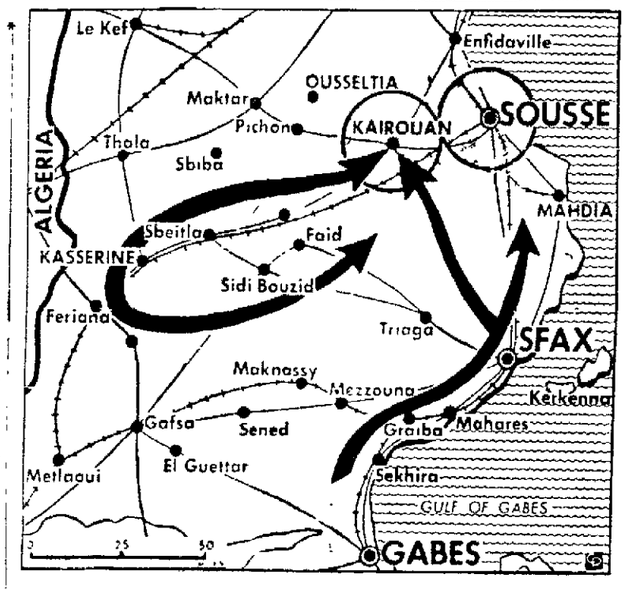
CLEVELAND — (UP) - The regional War Labor Board today announced approval of a voluntary application from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, and the United Rubber Workers (CIO) for approval of adjustments in rates for 5,000 employes.

The adjustments were intended to eliminate inequalities in several hundred job classifications and result in an average increase of 2 cents hourly.

Sfax Cheers British; Allies Closing In



The radio telephoto at top was transmitted from Algiers by the U. S. Army Signal corps. It shows townspeople of Sfax cheering the British as they entered the key Tunisian port April 10. The map below indicates how the Americans swept into Kairouan and how the British took Sousse as they pushed north to crowd Rommel into the "coffin corner" of Tunisia around Tunis and Bizerte.



RED CROSS FUND HITS $67,308

Final Figures Show Campaign Surpassed Goal By $6,308 or 14 Per Cent.

Despite an increased quota this year, Mansfield and Richland county exceeded their Red Cross war fund goal by $6,308 or 14 per cent, final campaign figures showed today.

City and county Red Cross members contributed $67,308 to the war fund, an average of considerably more than $1 per member, L. W. Birch, chairman of the drive, reported. The campaign opened March 1 and closed March 31.

The county has exceeded its quota repeatedly in recent years and this year the goal was boosted to meet increased demands from the war areas. Red Cross officials said the 1943 drive was one of the best ever reported in the county.

Best showing in the campaign was made by the national industries division which more than doubled its $1,000 quota, contributing $2,216 for a 122 per cent excess. The division, headed by S. H. Campbell of Mansfield, includes chain stores and other business and industrial firms with headquarters outside the county.

'Mystery Boy' Continues To Puzzle County Authorities

"Mystery Boy" Johnny Corn continued to puzzle Richland county officers today although 40 hours have passed since he wandered wet and hungry into an Oak street residence and told the family there he was lost, unable to find or describe where he lived.

All the boy, an orphan, has been able to tell authorities is that he arrived by bus in this vicinity -he isn't sure where--to make his home with his grandmother. He thinks her home is near Lucas and that he had lived there about two days. As to where he lived before that, Johnny doesn't explain that either.

He crawled out of a window at his grandmother's home "to go out to play" and his troubles started when he wandered aimlessly away from the home.

Adding to the perplexing problem facing county officers is that Johnny frequently changes his story. Yesterday, he told officers he was eight years old, and today he maintains he's 13.

While Sheriff Frank E Robinson has been kept busy tracing down all possible clues to his identity, Johnny remains in the Salvation Army detention home.

Johnny is still confident that his grandmother is either Mary or Anna Hoyer and that she resides in the Lucas-Perrysville community, not far from the railroad tracks which he followed to Mansfield Monday night.

Sheriff Robinson, the favorite

HANGING SET

Traitor, Who Aided Nazi, Goes To Gallows April 27.

DETROIT — (UP) — Stocky, German-born Max Stephan learned today that he will be hanged at sunrise April 27 for treason against his adopted country.

Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, who imposed the death penalty on Stephan last Aug. 6, fixed the new day of execution as the convicted traitor stood facing the American flag he betrayed by assisting an escaping Nazi prisoner of war.

The execution, first under federal treason law in the history of the country, will be carried out at the Federal Correctional institute at Milan, Mich.

Two-Way Drive Launched to Lift News Ban at Food Talks

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON A two-pronged movement to break the ban on newspaper coverage of the forthcoming international food conference was launched today as Sen. Homer Ferguson, (R.) Mich., thrust a resolution before the senate.

The Ferguson resolution, identical with one proposed in the house yesterday by Rep. Fred Bradley (R.) Mich., calls for creation of a special congressional committee to sit in on the United Nations conference, scheduled to begin at Hot Springs, Va., May 18.

The resolution also provides that the three major news services of the nation — International News Service, Associated Press and United Press—shall be permitted to assign representatives to the conference.

Arrangements for press coverage of the sessions, as disclosed through the state department, would bar all reporters from the meetings except opening and closing formal sessions.

The Homestead hotel, site of the discussions, would be declared "out-of-bounds" for newspapermen covering the conference and news of the proceedings would be given reporters through official press headquarters established outside the hotel.

Ferguson's resolution would enable correspondents to cover the conference "in a normal fashion"

CATLETT GETS 'HOT SPOT' ON LABOR BILL

County Representative Named Head of Sub-Committee To Study French Measure.

SEES REVISIONS LIKELY

Proposal To Regulate Unions Heads For Stormy Sessions, Lawmakers Predict.

The fate of the French bill—which embodies in its present form some of the recommendations made before the Ohio house and senate at Columbus Monday night by Capt. Eddie E. Rickenbacker—today was in the hands of a house judiciary sub-committee headed by John L. Catlett, Richland county representative.

The French bill, submitted by Representative Earl M. French, Delaware county Republican, proposes regulation of labor unions. Interest in the progress of the bill was spurred by Capt. Rickenbacker's address, since by coincidence the French bill was scheduled for judiciary committee consideration the following night.

Viewed as highly controversial by both house and senate, the bill was referred to a special sub-committee of the judiciary committee, of which Catlett was made chairman. Other members are Aaron T. Grad, Hamilton county and William R. Van Aken, Cuyahoga, Republicans; and John Babka, and Edwin F. Sawicki, both Cuyahoga Democrats. Thus Republicans outnumber the Democrats, 3 to 2.

Catlett was quoted today in United Press dispatches from Columbus as predicting that French's plan to have a state employment relations board assume regulation of collective bargaining, regulation of union elections and financial affairs and enforcement of fair labor practices probably would be revised, leaving any regulatory functions in the hands of some established state agency such as the department of industrial relations.

Two members of his five-man committee, Catlett was quoted as saying, were believed to favor the French bill substantially in its present form while two others opposed it.

Commenting yesterday on Rickenbacker's speech, Catlett said that he thought it was "a little too broad in certain respects."

DELAYED AGAIN

Promised Liquor Rationing Stalled By Fisher.

For the second time in as many days, the awaited announcement of details of the states liquor rationing system was delayed again today.

Associated Press dispatches from Columbus today said that State Liquor Director Don Fisher, who has been authorized to institute such a program, by legislative action, was reported to have been called out of town.

Monday he said the rationing program would be announced Tuesday. Tuesday he said the announcement would come today. But Ferd Bing, assistant director, said no announcement would be forthcoming today.

ADMITS WASTE

General Says Army "May" Have Thrown Food Away.

WASHINGTON (AP) Maj. Gen. E. B. Gregory acknowledged before the senate war investigating committee today that "there may be instances" in some army camps of "huge quantities of food being thrown out as garbage."

Testifying in the committee's food investigation, the quartermaster general declared, however, that if such wastage has occurred "I don't think it will be repeated in the future."

Offer 300 Tickets To Concert, Moved To Senior High

Not the first 100 new members but the first 300 new members to enroll in the Civic Music association will be presented tickets to tomorrow night's Civic Music concert the executive committee of the organization decided today.

Rev. Glenn F. Lewis, president, announced the plan to give tickets to the concert to the first 100 new members at the membership campaign dinner meeting Monday and by 10 a. m. today the 100 tickets were gone. Since many of the workers did not have a chance to report by that time the committee extended the privilege to the first 300 new members.

With this increase audience the concert by Paul Robeson will be held at Mansfield senior high

Allies Narrow Rommel's Hold Around Tunis

Flying Fortresses Wreck 73 Enemy 'Evacuation Planes' In Raids Over Sicilian Airports; Nazis Leaving, Report.

(By Associated Press)

Allied spearheads were reported driving into Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's siege lines in the narrowing Axis-held corridor in northern Tunisia today, and an Algiers broadcast declared that Rommel had already started evacuating German technicians from the North African trap.

Other reports from Rome and Marseille said Axis troops, mostly Italians, had been slipping out of Tunisia during the last few nights and had been seen disembarking in Sicily and Sardinia.

A German military commentator, however, declared there would be "no Dunkirk" for Rommel's 200,000 beleaguered troops, and thus indicated they would be left as a time-saving sacrifice in a sequel to the German disaster at Stalingrad.

At-a-glance developments on other fronts:

AIR WAR—RAF bombers wing 1,500 miles round-trip across Alps to pound Spezia naval base in northern Italy, other Allied raiders hit Palermo and Messina harbors in Sicily and targets in northwest Germany; Swedish fighter planes drive off German bombers flying over Sweden's major naval base.

RUSSIA — Moscow expects heavy German attacks in next two or three weeks; Nazis massing troops, supplies in many sectors, Soviet-piloted U. S. planes reported aiding Red armies in large-scale aerial fighting; German pressure shifts to Leningrad sector.

On the Tunisian front, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced that the Allies now had rolled up to Rommel's mountain defenses ringing Tunis and Bizerte, while United Nations fliers destroyed 84 more Axis planes and lost only three.

The German high command said a series of Allied attacks on the western flank of Rommel's mountain-rimmed foothold had been repulsed by counter-attacking Axis forces.

"In the southern sector, strong enemy forces approached Axis positions and carried out reconnaissance thrusts, which, however,

WARNING: Japs All Set for Air Offensive, Says M'Arthur

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—(AP)—Headquarters of General MacArthur tonight announced tersely that a strong force of Japanese aircraft raided Milne bay during daylight today. Details were not immediately received. The raid was believed to have been on the approximate scale of other big raids in the southwest Pacific recently, which General MacArthur has termed the beginning of Japanese aerial offensive in this area.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—General Douglas MacArthur warned today the Japanese were set for a no-holds-barred struggle for domination of the skies over the southwest Pacific to capitalize on what he described as their "complete control of the sealanes in the western Pacific and the outer approaches to Australia."

To this warning MacArthur added the assertion airpower, rather than naval power was the key to the situation in this theater and the battle of the western Pacific would be won or lost by proper application of air and ground forces.

MacArthur's statement came during a lull in the new Japanese aerial offensive, during which Allied airmen blasted two enemy ships in Hansa bay on the north coast of New Guinea, probably sinking one of 10,000 tons and setting another of 8,000 tons afire, and struck at other enemy bases above Australia.

The raids gave point to Mac-

Arthur's blunt assertion that "the range of our air force over surrounding waters marks the stretch of the no-man's sea which is the measure of our safety (in Australia)."

"If we lose the air," the Allied commander declared, "naval forces cannot save us. The first line of Allied defense is our bomber line."

Control of the sea lanes to Australia, MacArthur said, "no longer depends solely or perhaps even primarily upon naval power, but upon air power operating from

UNDER WAY: Initial Task of Casablanca Plan Near Success

(By United Press)

LONDON—Three months after the Casablanca conference finds the Allies on the verge of accomplishing the initial task outlined by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill—the expulsion of the Axis from Africa.

This is the initial requisite established by the conferees for the launching of the second major task of the beat-Hitler program—the invasion and defeat of Hitler within his European citadel.

The first phase of that second task is the softening up of Nazi defenses and war industry, and that is well under way under the stepped-up scale of Allied day and night air attacks.

Although most attention has been focused on the attacks in northern Europe, particularly against submarine bases and the German arms industry, the Allied air arm has been dealing blows, not of equal intensity but probably of equal comparative effect, against Italy and Italian outposts in Sicily.

After Marshal Rommel's expulsion from Tunisia, the Allies will be prepared to follow through with the invasion of Europe proper. Where, naturally, is a military secret, but there is growing speculation in London that southern Europe will resound first to the marching tramp of Allied invaders.

The Allies required about two months after the Casablanca conference before they could really come to grips with Rommel.

Although it is assumed that preparations for invading the soft

CHAPTER XII

Mr. John Peter Quincy, age 72, rummaged deep in one of his pockets and produced a pipe handmade of manzanita wood. His ceremony of filling, tamping, inspecting, lighting, consumed almost 10 minutes. Rosemary could have told anybody — if she had seen the ceremony—that Uncle Pete was actually concerned not with smoking so much as with thought.

But Rosemary was in Option now, and Uncle Pete was disturbed about that very fact. So, he did the next best thing to speaking with Rosemary — he hunted around until he found Bill St. Clair.

"Hi, Uncle Pete. Draw up a chair and sit," Bill was pouring over tables of blueprints and type specifications for building an air field.

"Yes mum," Uncle Pete rumbled.

"Everything okay with you?"

"No mum."

"No?" Bill sat back, now, to look directly at the bearded old fellow. "What's the trouble?"

Uncle Pete didn't respond at once. He smoked several puffs, and he pulled at his beard, and he looked off at the cliffs of Purple Canyon.

"What is a war profiteer?" he finally asked.

"Oh. Why, it's a person who cheats the government, Uncle Pete. Cheats America. By making an exhorbitant profit on any deal, just because our country is at war." Bill smiled genially, then. "You thinking about a little profiteering, on the sly?"

Uncle Pete grinned back, understanding. But he shook his head.

"Rosemary went to town," he said.

Bill perked up in serious interest. "Did she? Why, I wonder."

"Yes mum."

They were silent for a long moment. "Uncle Pete, did you come here to—well look, why did you ask what a war profiteer is? And what about Rosemary's going to Option? Did she tell you anything that—?"

He broke off. The old man had got up, muttering a little to himself. Bill watched him take off his hat and chase a lizard with it, one of the many harmless little beasts that seemed to inhabit this ghost town. He caught the lizard too, his old face beaming like a child's then he turned it loose again. Bill knew it would be useless to question Uncle Pete further now.

Rosemary told herself that her self-assigned task would be extremely distasteful, but that she would go through with it as impersonally as she could. Impersonally? Invite intimacy from one's own husband, and remain impersonal? She was wide-eyed with worry, and not a little fear. But wide eyes only made Rosemary prettier, she who was already an extraordinarily pretty girl.

"Sur-r-re!" Harry Boyle was saying, expansively now. "Been lonesome as hell out in this jerkwater town, kid. None of the old gang here. Sure glad you came in. Guess you couldn't stay away, eh?" Smirking. Conceited. Rosemary writhed inside. This was going to be well nigh impossible! And yet—"If I can act just right," she reminded herself, "if I can appear to be giving in to him and keep my self-control and keep my wits about me, maybe I can trap a man I know is a traitor as well as a heel!"

It was a large order, but it was no more than secret service agents are asked to do for the country they love. At least she wasn't risking her life. Only her happiness . . . Harry had his arm around her and he pulled her very close to him, sitting with her there in the car. She made no protest.

"What say we slip out of here for a day or two, hunh kid? Run over to the coast. Los Angeles. Hollywood. Even up to 'Frisco. Scatter a little jack around the night spots. Get you some new clothes. Rent us a cute place for a while on some beach, maybe. Hmmm?"

It was the same smooth goo he used that night in Washington when he had overwhelmed her with his courting. Oh, Harry Boyle was a genius in his way, she realized.

She didn't answer him, and he cupped his hand under her chin, petted her, kissed her daintily on the ear. She had to fight to keep from going rigid again, and to keep from fleeing entirely.

"I—I think we'd better stay here, Harry," she managed. "There's reasons why we oughtn't to go away."

"Okay, then. I got some business on here, myself, matter of fact. We oughta work together like I said in Washington. I'll lease us a cute two-room spot here in Option, and we'll move in for a—"

"No! Oh no, I—" she was suddenly frantic, and as suddenly she knew she must keep on with her act. "I mean — not today, Harry. Later, maybe. We—you see, I wanted to talk to you on business now. Business."

He smiled broadly, too-knowingly, and too-wisely. "Listen, sugar, business can always wait, don't you know that? Hmmm? Why kid, we can have us some good times! We're married, but we never did have us a honeymoon . . . Listen, you aren't still sore about that—uh—that little disagreement back in Washington? No-o-o, sure you aren't! Everything's jake now, hmmm?"

"I'm not thinking about that, Harry. The girl you kissed all evening, just after you married me. Or the way you—insulted me—the time I met you in the cafe afterward." She couldn't resist putting that reminder in. "All I want is to—"

"Listen, baby! . . . No-o-o-o! I was just acting up a little. Sur-r-re! Insult? Not anybody as cute as you, baby. Never! You know old Harry. I get a little whiffed up or something, and—come on, forget it, hmmm? We'll start a real honeymoon."

"Harry I—I—all right. If you—I mean, I'll make a deal with you. It's why I came here. Do you—do you really want me to come and live with you as your wife?"

"Never wanted anything so much, baby! Never!"

"Then—then I will. But first, here's what you've got to do."

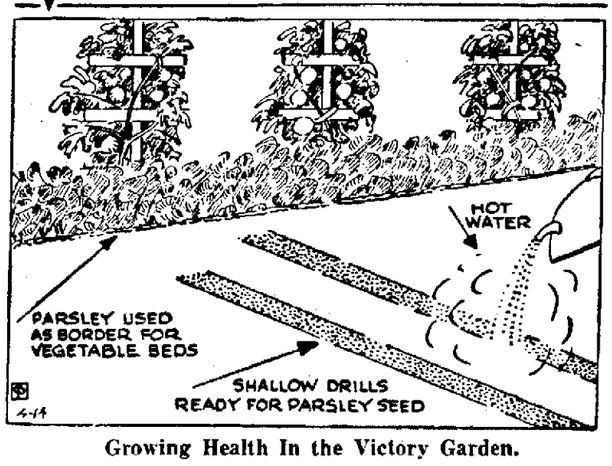
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Growing Health In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Ass'n.

THERE ARE many ways of growing health in the Victory garden but one of the ways which is not to be overlooked is to grow parsley.

Parsley, formerly considered useful only as a herb for flavoring or garnishing certain foods has now been brought to the foreground by the search for foods richest in vitamin A. Parsley is now considered one of the three best sources of vitamin A, since one ounce of it supplies many units of A, as well as vitamin C. Parsley's iron content is also very high and it is also rich in copper and manganese.

Parsley seeds are slow to germinate, taking from four to six weeks, therefore it is best just before sowing parsley seeds to pour boiling water in the shallow drills, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Parsley seeds should also be soaked for 24 hours before planting time in tepid water. These steps before planting will cut the germinating time almost in half.

Parsley is attractive as a growing plant and it therefore can be used as a border in the Victory vegetable garden as illustrated. The moss curled variety of parsley or the extra triple curled are perhaps the most decorative since both varieties have tightly curled leaves.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

Amazing results in building STURDY BODIES!

YOUNG people, especially those of grammar and high school age, are prone to be deficient in stomach digestive juices and red-blood.

A growing-person who is operating on a 65 to 70% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

In such cases Nature needs extra help. Organic troubles or focal infection, if they exist, must be corrected. Tissue foods must be digested and rich, red-blood must be present to build sturdy bodies.

SSS Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient . . . and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so the body can make proper use of it in tissue building and repair.

These two important results enable the body to make use of the food as Nature intended. Thus you may gain a keen appetite . . . firm flesh . . . body energy . . . mental alertness!

Build Sturdy Health so that the Doctors may better serve our Fighting Forces

Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. ©S.S.S.Co.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

OVERALLS AND SLACKS WORN TO 'COUNTY FAIR'

University Women Enter Needlework and Canned Fruits at Imitation Rural Fair Staged By Social Committee; Elect Officers.

TURNED "farmerettes" for the evening, University Women entered exhibits of handicraft, home canning and art, enjoyed the excitement of concessions, side shows and games of chance at the "county fair" staged for them Tuesday night at the Prospect park pavilion.

Mrs. S. B. Vinson was in charge of the successful party. Through her efforts, and the efforts of the committee assisting her, the pavilion was turned into a miniature fair ground. Displays of handwork occupied one table, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Emil Lommatsch, Mrs. Albert Yuncker and Mrs. Paul Schultz. Canned goods were entered by Mrs. Kneirim, Mrs. Charles Farry and Mrs. S. B. Vinson. A blue ribbon was awarded to Mrs. K. E. Buhr for her sketch of "The House of Seven Gables."

Assisting Mrs. Vinson with the county fair were Mrs. James Stonebreaker, Mrs. R. F. Zeller, Mrs. A. L. Yuncker, Mrs. Leed, Mrs. Earl Gaar, Mrs. M. D. Harnly, Mrs. Howard Diller and the Misses Janet Kelly and Miriam Neese. Judges were Mrs. L. C. Nigh and Miss Delia Evans.

When refreshments were served, point rationing problems were settled by guests unwrapping potato chips, sandwiches and serving them with salads and cold drinks at long tables gayly decorated for the occasion.

White elephant prizes in great numbers were donated for the fair. An auction was a late feature of the evening.

Election of officers to serve for the coming two years was held by the A. A. U. W. in connection with the party Tuesday night. Mrs. Thomas Hoffman, former vice president and program chairman, will serve as the new president. Mrs. Albert Yuncker was elected first vice president; Mrs. Leonard Hautzenroeder, second vice president; Mrs. L. C. Nigh, secretary, and Mrs. Harold Burns, treasurer.

The A. A. U. W. will hold two more meetings before newly elected officers assume their duties. May 4 a dinner meeting will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church with Frank Peat, of Bellville, as guest speaker. Mr. Peat will speak on "Children Illustrations." On May 25, the University Women will entertain the high school senior girls who plan to go to college, at a program and tea. Miss Emma Waring and Mrs. Harnly are in charge of all arrangements for that meeting.

Mrs. John Wolf Named President Of Monday Club

Mrs. Henry Fiedler and Mrs. Henry Stutz entertained the Monday Nighters club at the former's home, with 16 members in attendance.

Devotions were lead by Mrs. Henry Stutz. Mrs. John Wolf, the club president, had charge of the business meeting. Election of officers was held, with Mrs. Chris Geisel being named as the new president. Other officers elected were Mrs. Ray Lantz, Mrs. Henry Stutz and Mrs. Esley Cleckner.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the Steiger Tea room, May 10.

There's Another Mrs. Roosevelt Winning London

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM
(AP Features)

LONDON—A slender, gray-haired woman in American Red Cross uniform shared a taxicab with two United States soldiers. They rode in silence for a while, then the woman spoke in a gentle voice, asking the men friendly little questions.

One of the soldiers looked at the three gold service stripes on her left sleeve, and said:

"We know you, Mrs. Roosevelt. We've been in your club and had a good time."

When the cab stopped, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt tried to insist that she pay at least a part of the fare. The soldiers would not have it so. The one who had been doing the talking asserted:

"No, Mrs. Roosevelt, we're going to pay it. In fact, I'm going to pay it, and if anybody tries to stop me I'd break his arm."

"That," concluded Mrs. Roosevelt, "was one of the sweetest things that happened to me over here."

While her husband, the doughty brigadier general who in two wars and other dangerous adventures has trimmed many a bigger adversary down to his size, is fighting on one of the battlefronts, and while her son, Quentin, is in action as an artillery lieutenant, Mrs. Roosevelt directs a Red Cross clubhouse near London.

"We make and serve 400 dozen doughnuts daily," Mrs. Roosevelt says, "and that is only one item. When you think of all the hamburgers and the bottles of soft drink handed over the counters—well, you can be sure there is plenty to do. I dream of doughnuts and hamburgers."

But if her regular staff is inadequate, all help possible is readily forthcoming from the soldiers.

Mrs. Roosevelt served 18 months with the Y. M. C. A. in the last war.

"It seems," she comments, "that I have always been mothering soldiers, especially the soldiers of my husband's division."

Soldiers like her because she understands them and has an unfailing quick sympathy.

Mrs. Roosevelt does her job on full time all-day schedules just as the other Red Cross workers do. Besides that, her evenings are given over mainly to administrative chores and to planning entertainment for the troops. She enjoys little social life away from the club, reminding her friends that "I have only one day off a week, you know."

PRESENT TWO PAPERS AT MANSFIELD SOROSIS

Miss Bertha Patterson Hostess to Members of Club For Election of Officers; Mrs. O. G. Place Named President for Coming Year.

MISS BERTHA PATTERSON was hostess to members of the Mansfield Sorosis at its Tuesday afternoon meeting at the Women's Club, when Mrs. O. G. Place was named as president for the coming year at election of officers.

Others who will serve in an official capacity include Mrs. P. B. Pecht, vice president; Mrs. C. A. McClure, secretary; Mrs. C. L. Allen, treasurer, and Mrs. John Angle, historian.

The first part of the program was presented by Mrs. Pecht, who discussed "Maya, the Lost World." The home of the Maya was described by Mrs. Pecht, in its modern setting.

The ancient Mayan civilization, sometimes called the Greeks of the New World, was discussed. Much of its history is unknown, because Spanish conquerors destroyed the second book. The Mayan civilization developed during the early years of the Christian era and became the most brilliant and cultural expression of ancient America.

With the increase in wealth from agricultural pursuit, Mrs. Pecht told how the Mayan turned to other pursuits for leisure, such as architecture, art, sculpture, paintings, weaving and feather-working. Beautiful pyramids, temples and monasteries were built by the people. Chithen Itza was their most holy city. Ruins of this city covered three square miles and have made this region of great interest to thousands of tourists. Mrs. Pecht read two legends of the ancient Mayas to conclude her paper.

The second part of the program, by Mrs. Milo Hieber, was on "America Today," in which she stated that the greatest changes today are from the use of the Polar map. The second is the use of transportation and increased study of air maps. Highway transportation, the chief one being the Alaskan highway, was the third reason discussed. The fourth is the North Pacific planning project and the developing of Northwest Canada. Developing of the office of coordination of international affairs and the good neighbor policy were the last reasons presented by Mrs. Hieber.

Mrs. S. D. Hoover, president, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Fred Troll explained the second bond drive, and urged each member to participate.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. R. King, April 27, at 8 p. m.

Name Mrs. Scoles New President at Bible Club Meet

The Bethel Bible club met April 12 at the home of Mrs. R. K. Clark, Beechwood boulevard, with Mrs. Mike Louis in charge of devotions. Mrs. Harry Scoles presided at a business session, when she was named president, at an election of officers.

Other officers elected were Mrs. E. J. Horn, vice president; Mrs. M. R. Alderson, secretary, and Mrs. R. Patterson, treasurer. Telephone hostess will be Mrs. Ralph Bemiller.

During the business meeting, members decided to study the book of Exodus in the coming year. Mrs. E. J. Horn presented the lesson study. Mrs. Horn, Westview boulevard, will entertain at the April 26 meeting.

If Grandma Heard Today's Complaints!

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In Washington they've begun to clamp down on soothsayers, fortune tellers, astrologists, trance mediums and such folk as obstacles to the war effort.

Before the curtain is finally rung down on Madame Astrolabe or her masculine compeer, the seventh son of a seventh daughter, I wish in the interests of winning the war, they'd materialize a nice old-fashioned grandma to tell the women what's what. Before she crossed to the Beyond, grandma had never cast a vote, had a permanent, or dreamed of a WAAC, a WAVE or WOW—but she was practical.

When she heard of the hubbub women raised until they could buy sliced bread again, she'd probably say: "Why, my dear, I mixed my bread, set it in sponge in a warm place over night, worked it out in the morning into loaves and rolls, then let it rise again. As for demanding someone to cut it for me, I've never known two slices to meet the same requirements of thickness."

"But grandma," the modern matron would say, "I had to put up school lunches for the children and it took time to cut bread for sandwiches."

"I had to put up lunches for men working in the field, my dear, and cook lunches for those who ate at home, and believe me there was more to it than slicing bread."

"But I haven't time to slice bread now that the OPA is clamping down on diaper service I've always had the children's diapers washed, and now goodness only knows what we're going to do since the OPA is cutting down on hot water and oil."

"Diapers, my dear," sniffed grandma, "diapers? In my day we never spoke about them. We washed them in the good old-fashioned way, hung them on the line to dry and that was the end of it. As for diaper service—I wouldn't say how such a thing strikes me."

"It's all very well for you to talk. When you kept house you didn't have to bother with rationing and not being able to buy canned goods. I don't know what the world is coming to."

"I never saw any canned goods but what I put up myself. When I kept house for your grandfather I don't believe I owned a can-opener, and we didn't have delicatessen stores I don't know what the world is coming to either, my dear. And just let me say this, before going back to the Shades, the housewife who wants to win the war has a big opportunity. But she's got to stop grousing about shoes, diaper service, canned goods, walking a few blocks, and mastering the food rationing system. In spite of all these gadgets you think so necessary, aren't you getting a bit soft, my dear? Including, in the head!"

It has been estimated that a welder's flame is visible for 15 miles.

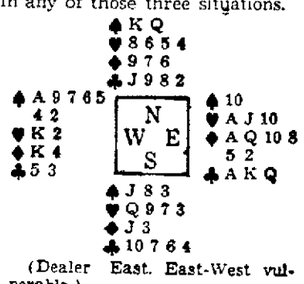
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO FIT IS GUARANTEED

In almost every social bridge circle, you will find somebody who insists that a bid of one more than necessary to respond, in a different suit, guarantees a satisfactory fit with the partner's suit. It does not guarantee any such thing, among fine players. All that it does is to say: "Partner, we have a game; either we have a sound fit in your suit, or else my suit is so tremendous we can make the game in mine, or my hand is so powerful we do not require a fit." The forcing bid may be made in any of those three situations.



(Dealer East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♥	Pass
6 NT	Pass	7 ♠

North had sense enough to keep his mouth shut, and not double, when he heard that last bid, for fear he would chase his oponents into 7-No Trumps which, as it develops, can be made if East plays South for the heart Q. But to make 7-Spades is, of course, impossible. In fact, two tricks were lost in the actual play, both of them to trumps.

When the deal was over, the storm broke, between East and West. The latter insisted that his partner's jump to 3-Diamonds positively guaranteed a fit with his own spades, and fixed that suit as the ultimate declaration, unless he, West, saw fit to put it into No Trumps. He opined that East's last call of 6-No Trumps put it up to West to go into spades at grand slam unless he preferred No Trumps; with his own great length in spades, he preferred the suit contract.

The saddest part about this post-mortem is that West still thinks such a jump should guarantee a fit with his suit, so his future partners had better watch out. He does not understand how the broader meaning of the jump shift bid can make it more useful in the long run.

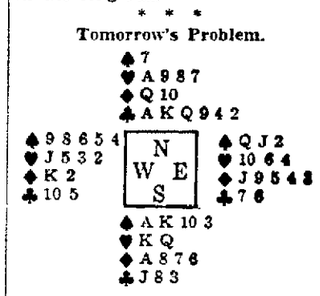
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South tries to work a double squeeze on this deal at 7-No Trumps, winding up by holding a heart and a diamond in dummy when he leads the last club, with South's best two diamonds and spade 10 remaining, what cards should East retain, to beat the play?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 15.

An auspicious time to aim for ambitious goals, with faith and resolution, which should attract the practical support of superiors, elders and those in influential positions there are signs of peculiar intrigues or secret compacts.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of definite progress These aims may be furthered by tact, sound strategies and practically worked out plans and programs, and through agreeable and friendly approach rather than over aggressive methods or forcing measures Reckless, impulsive or angry moves would spell defeat and incite antagonism.

A child born on this day may be ambitious, efficient and practical, but impulsive, domineering and extravagant.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I knew that no blows from a knout could have left more cruel scars upon Hal Meredith's body than the news I was telling him was inflicting upon his soul. His resurrected hope of winning Katharine was being done to death, for Hal Meredith, honorable and chivalrous, would go to any lengths to take the women he loved away from unhappiness, but would not lift a finger to win her away from a husband who loved her, and whom she loved in return.

As I paused, he lifted his head and put another hoarse question.

"Why is Katharine not with him in hiding? If I know her, and I think I do, she would brave hell fire to be with the man she loved if he were in danger."

"Yes, she would," I assented, "but she does not know where he is."

"Do you?"

"Yes, but I am bound to silence by a promise to my father, who is giving sanctuary to Jack. My father is a high official in the secret service, you know."

"Yes, I know," he assented, and I hurried on.

"Jack also is determined that Katharine shall not know his whereabouts, lest she, in trying to go to him, run into grave peril."

"The fool!" Hal exploded "Doesn't he realize that, if she loves him, no torture could be worse than the crucifixion of terror she is undergoing now?"

Now my scales dipped again toward Hal, and I wished, against my better judgment and my loyalty, that Katharine could see and hear him. For there was no mistaking that he understood Katharine's soul—her capacity for sacrifice, her poignant suffering at being shut out from her husband's peril—as Jack could not, or would not.

Another Chapter.

"I know, Hal," I said, "that everything you say is true. But neither Katharine nor I can alter conditions yet. And now let me give you another chapter of the story, which I am sure will tie in with what you came here to tell me."

Then I plunged into an account of Ruth Hayes' call on me at the hotel, her insulting messages to Katharine, her demands that I tell her Jack's whereabouts, and her vague threats of what she would do if I refused.

"If my father had not opportunely arrived just then I do not know what might have happened," I concluded. "But he routed her, and he has had her trailed ever since."

"So that Katharine is in no danger from her?" he asked anxiously.

"None whatever," I answered. "And will not be in the future, I am sure."

"Thank God for that," he interjected fervently.

Ruth Being Trailed.

"You see," I went on, "my father believes her to be an espionage agent, and is having her trailed without her knowledge. And now I am ready for your story."

"I think you have anticipated part of it already," he said. "Tell me, what does this Ruth Hayes look like?"

"She prides herself upon being a typical wilderness woman," I said slowly. "She is tall, of good figure, and some might call her good-looking, but she has too hard-bitten a look for my fancy. Her voice, when she forgets herself, is harsh, but she can tone it down to almost melodious suavity."

"You have described her exactly," he said. "She came to me at my office yesterday, having gained entrance by sending me a penciled note saying 'Bearing important information concerning Katharine Bickett.' But the name signed to the note was Rose Harding."

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Although Coach Paul Snyder and his gridiron Tygers of Mansfield high school are caught with an open date in their schedule for next fall, Sandusky high school's decision to suspend all interscholastic sports for the duration surprised no one much—no one who has kept in even remote touch with the Blue Streak situation.

Tyger cage coach Vern Hoffman offered to bet Snyder a long time ago that Sandusky wouldn't keep its gridiron engagement here next fall, but Snyder, having difficulties enough in putting a schedule together, decided to take a chance.

The Blue Streak sport swan song smacked of a patriotic air in the explanation that the step was being taken to eliminate war time transportation.

But I question the partriotism of a step which deprives Sandusky boys of the physical contact sport competition which would develop their initiative and their ability to take it when the going gets tough.

The one-two-three-four, inhale, exhale wand-waving physical education program may build their bodies to army requirements, but it won't create any fighting spirit

The Blue Streaks, I expect, will retain their color, but mighty blue. Such is the spirit of youth, I doubt if they'll change it to Saffron Streaks.

Sandusky jumped at the chance a year ago to announce suspension of the cage sport, "because the Plumbrook ordnance plant would be using the high gym" in which the Streaks played their games.

Giving the gym to the government was a patriotic gesture, but the Streaks could have played. Marion, without a gym these many years, could have told them how.

But it was whispered about pretty freely that Sandusky, not content with cutting down its own sport program, along with one other school not so far from Mansfield, went to state Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend with the request that he suspend all interscholastic sports in Ohio for the duration.

These two schools indicated so the story goes, that they wou'd be very happy to quit athletics, but didn't want to be the only ones in Ohio to take the step

I doubt if Townsend has authority to take any such action but as I get it he never even considered the proposition

The great majority of Ohio high schools felt it their patriotic duty to give their boys competitive sports, and Townsend, give him credit, has done all in his power to help continue the athletic program.

Sandusky Superintendent Karl Whinnery, in announcing the sport suspension, is quoted as saying the program would be impossible "without violation of ODT rules." Does he mean that every other school in the state will be violating those rules?

CROWD EXPECTED AT DOUBLE-HEADER

NEW YORK (INS)—The biggest crowd to sit in on exhibition baseball here in years is expected to pile into Yankee Stadium today to watch the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants tangle in a doubleheader for the Civilian Defense fund.

The opener of these games which will establish the springtime major league champions will bring together the Yanks against the Dodgers. The Giants will rest through the first half of the twin bill, then take on the winner of the first game

LEAVE INDIANA

FRENCH LICK, Ind. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs and White Sox wind up the Indiana phase of their spring training today before starting the city series in the Windy City on Friday. The Cubs are in good shape but Manager Dykes of the White Sox has three outfielders—Wally Moses, Moose Solters and Thruman Tucker—complaining of leg hurts.

BREAK CAMP

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Tommy Bridges, veteran curve ball artist, is Manager Steve O'Neill's selection to hurl for the Detroit Tigers today against the Minneapolis Millers of the American association. After the game the Tigers, 6 to 4 winners yesterday over the Chicago Cubs, will break camp.

Jim Bagby Picked To Lift Lid

Selected as Opening Day Hurler For Tribe.

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—Jim Bagby was Manager Lou Boudreau's choice today to hurl for the Cleveland Indians in the American league opener against Detroit next Wednesday.

As a conditioner for the opening day choice, the Tribe pilot listed Bagby for seven innings of duty in today's exhibition with the Cincinnati Reds.

Bagby started the Indians off on the right foot by defeating the Tigers in Detroit on the first day of the 1942 season but that wasn't his first opening day assignment.

* * *

When he was a Boston Red Sox rookie back in 1938, Joe Cronin named him to pitch against the slugging New York Yankees in the opener and he won.

The son of the old sarge has appeared in three games this spring and the opposition has yet to score an earned run against him.

Some 3,500 Richmond, Ind., fans were deprived of a glance at Ohio's two major league ball clubs when another of the Cincinnati-Cleveland games was cancelled yesterday, but the Reds promised to return next Monday to play the St Paul Saints of the American association to make amends.

Meanwhile, the Buckeye diamonders moved into Springfield in an effort to return to action after two days' idleness. Cincinnati's two-game advantage of the American leaguers looms bigger with each cancellation.

* * *

Reds Manager Bill McKechnie retained Clyde Shoun as his pitching nominee for the third contest of the scrediuled nine game series, but by this time, he can feel free to call on almost any of his available mounasmen, for the postponements have provided ample rest for all.

Count Fleet Wins Easily

Bolsters Position as Derby Favorite.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The owners of four Kentucky Derby candidates, after watching their beasts trail behind Count Fleet at Jamaica yesterday, should, if they expect to send their horses to the Derby post, ask that Count Fleet run sideways with seven jockeys on his back in order to make it a fair contest.

The odds on Count Fleet in the $3,000 St. James yesterday were 3 to 20. It is true that he scored a smashing victory, roaring in to win 3½ lengths ahead of Bousset after being forced extremely wide at the first turn, but the victory is even more impressive when it is considered that the Count paid less to win than the lowly Towser paid to show.

Strung out behind the Count were the Derby hopefuls of yesteryear. Four Freedoms, Famour Victory, Eurasian and Eye for Eye in that order. All of them carried 113 pounds against the county's 122 except Four Freedoms which packed 108. Had these animals carried feathers and Count Fleet a knapsack filled with rocks, the result would have been the same so hard were those victorious hooves flying through the mud.

With every report on the Count's training runs the odds in the Derby winter book stem to drop lower and lower. The odds of 4 to 5 at which he was priced prior to yesterday's race are fantastic, and his victory at Jamaica will drive the price down another peg. If he wins the Wood Memorial next Saturday, most of the Kentucky Derby wagering will center around which horse will come in second and the Count will be forgotten

Jockey Johnny Longden was reported to be restraining the Count once he started to pull safely away from the field. Still, the Count turned in the time of 1:42 4-5 for a mile and seventy yards. The proud son of Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 derby, has, through performances like this, made himself the smash hit of American turf.

* * *

However the only person who will ever get rich quick on Count Fleet is, apparently, Mrs. John D. Herts, who owns that noble steed. In the Jamaica feature Count Fleet returned only $2.30, $2.20 and $2.10, Bousset paid $2.70 and $2.40 and Towser $3.00.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A recent note about Americo Wojciejes, who collected rare butterflies as well as Japs during his stay on Guadalcanal, reminded Harry Sheer of the Madison, Wis., Capital Times of the Syracuse U. boxer with the unpronounceable name who fought for the N.C.A.A. light-heavyweight title there four years ago . . . Harry even learned to pronounce the name—Why-eee-jess—and he says that Americo is quite a guy. Just listen.

"Wojciejes was a one-man general store if there ever was one. He was a front-ranking pigeon fancier and some of his birds won national championships. Others have been used as breeders for military carriers . . . He won prize after prize at Syracuse for baking cakes. Honest he did' . . . He played the clarinet and trumpet like Artie Shaw and Harry James combined and there was little about Bach and Mozart Americo didn't know. . . . He went to school days (studying forestry) then worked in a steel mill nights supporting his mother and several younger sisters and brothers. . . .Now it's butterflies, but we weren't surprised here. We expect him to be speaking Japanese and driving the Nips batty by cornering all the chopsticks in Tokyo when the marines march in."

THROWN FOR A LOSS.

At the recent Chicago pro football meeting, Coach Art Keisling of the Pittsburgh Steelers was telling how Owner Bert Bell became worried last fall because his star halfback, Bill Dudley, seemed to be chattering too much in the huddles. . . . Bell and Keisling asked Quarterback Dick Riffle, who admitted "Yeah, he's always talking . . . 'Well what does he say?' Keisling asked . . . "He's always saying 'Give me the ball, give me the ball. If you can't do it give me the ball.' Riffle replied . . . Remembering what Dudley generally did when he got the ball, Bell and Keisling decided they were the ones who ought to keep quiet.

Yankees Liked By Scribes

St. Louis Browns Are Picked For Second.

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK — (AP) — The New York Yankees lost three-fourths of their infield, the best part of their outfield and the dean of their pitching staff to Uncle Sam but they're still the team to beat for the American league pennant in the opinion of the sports scribes.

Fully realizing that the war might change the complexion of any team or teams on very short notice, 56 of the 74 writers participating in the Associated Press' annual survey named the Yanks to top the junior circuit for the third straight year. And not one of them placed the champs lower than fourth as they polled 569 votes on the basis of eight for first, seven for second, six for third etc.

But after voting the Yankees the team most likely to succeed, the writers became widely separated, except in the opinion that Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics would land in the cellar.

With five of the scribes naming them for first place, the St. Louis Browns received ballots for every position except seventh and eighth to nose out the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox for second place. The Browns polled 437 votes to take the runner-up position, one notch above the spot in which they finished in the pennant race last season.

The Indians and Red Sox each received six first place votes but the Tribe showed a little more strength in the second and third place ballots. As a result, they finished third with 418 votes to the Red Sox's 401.

Cleveland was mentioned for every position except last as were the Detroit Tigers, who with one first place vote, finished fifth with 331 tallies. The sixth slot went to the Chicago White Sox and seventh to the Washington Senators, who received consideration for all positions except the top rung.

GIRL SOFTBALLERS SIGN WITH LEAGUE

CHICAGO — (INS) — Six outstanding girl softball players have signed contracts with the All-American Girls' Softball league, Ken Sells, league president, announced today.

The new players are Catcher Dorothy McGuire of Cleveland, O.; Pitcher Gloria Marks of San Diego, Calif., Infielders Esther Siske of Milwaukee, Wis.; and Helen Buchanan of Toledo, O., and Outfielders Edythe Perlick of Chicago, and Clara Schillece of Melrose Park, Ill.

GREG RICE MAKES FIRST OUTDOOR START

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Gregory Rice, greatest distance runner in American sports annals, will make his first 1943 outdoor appearance in the 49th annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival at Franklin Field April 24, it was announced today.

Among his opponents in a two-mile event will be Glenn Masten, of Colgate, IC4A indoor two mile champ. Rice, who has chalked up a string of 64 consecutive victories, will represent the New York A. C.

SIMMONS INJURED

BOSTON (AP) — Al Simmons, veteran outfielder trying a comeback with the Boston Red Sox, pulled a ligament in his right calf yesterday while scoring a home run against Boston college. Pete Fox, another Red Sox outfielder, was hit on the wrist by a pitched ball and the bruise will be X-rayed today.

FIGHT MANAGER DIES

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Luke Carney, 54, veteran fight manager who piloted Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh to the welterweight championship, died in St. Johns hospital last night after a brief illness.

Ritz Margin Sliced Again

Transportation Lead Cut To Five Games.

Ritz Nite club's lead in the Transportation bowling league dropped to five games last night at Colony alleys as they lost a 1-2 decision to Frank Williams, while second place Silver Kings were taking a 2-1 win over Motor Cargo.

Silver Kings almost made a clean sweep of scoring honors as Teal took high individual game of 231 and total of 583, and the Kings had high team game of 918. Coolridge cut in for a share of the honors with high team total of 2573.

BRAVES SCORE 7-5 VICTORY OVER YANKS

NEW YORK —(INS)— The pennant-winning Yankees were crestfallen today following their 7 to 5 defeat at the hands of the Boston Braves.

Despite the fact that the Bronxites scored 15 hits, including a homer and four doubles, they bowed to the Braves after Johnny McCarthy smacked a fence-buster in the 7th inning with two men on.

TROUT SEASON OPENS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— With the trout season opening in Ohio Thursday, State Conservation Commissioner Don Waters said most Ohio fishing tackle dealers had plenty of equipment to carry Buckeye anglers through another season or two despite a ban on the manufacture of steel rods and reels.

PONZI TAKES LEAD IN POOL MATCH

KANSAS CITY —(U.P.)— Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia, held a 209 point lead today over world Pocket billiard Champion Willie Moscom, Jackson, Mich., after winning 137 to 2 in the first block of their 1,250 point title match.

Ponzi had a high run of 92, running 70 balls to wind up yesterday's afternoon block and 22 in the first inning of the evening block. Mosconi, who won the world title at Detroit last fall, had a high run of only 16 and was off cue.

Colored Boys Take Titles

Dominates National Boxing Tournament.

BOSTON —(AP)— As holders of six of the eight 1943 titles, and missing a seventh one by the closest of decisions, negro battlers today extended their domination over the National A. A. U. boxing competition.

* * *

The half-dozen representatives of the race accounted for all but the titles in the association's two lightest classes during the two days of fisticuffing that wound up early this morning in the Boston Garden.

Among the negro victors were two 1942 champions, Bob Foxworth, the St Louis 175-pounder, and Samson Powell of Cleveland, a rugged middleweight.

A third winner here last year, Leroy Jackson, another capable Cleveland negro, took the short end of a divided decision from Pvt. Earl O'Neal of Fort Sill, Okla., in the 118-pounds windup.

The most decisive of the new champions was Charles Cooper, a Washington negro, who knocked out Eddie Gettys of New Orleans in the first round of the 147-pounds final.

The other negro winners were heavyweight Walter Moore of Chicago, who out pointed Fred Schott of Cleveland, Charles Hunter, the Cleveland 135-pounder who gained a three round technical verdict over Aubrey Holderfield of Little Rock, Ark., and Jackie Floyd of Philadelphia, who gained the 126-pounds crown from Thomas Stenhouse of Buffalo. Top honors in the 112-pounds class went to Tony Peppi, the experienced Boston Italian, when he out punched rugged Herky Kamensky of Pittsburgh, for a unanimous decision.

SHIFTS PLAYERS

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— Luke Sewell, boss of the St. Louis Browns, shifted Chet Laabs to left field and sent Mike Kreevich to center today as the Browns and St. Louis Cardinals resumed their city series. The left field post was vacated yesterday by Glenn McQuillen who was inducted into the navy.

Shutouts Rule League

Matinee Loop Leaders Victims of Whitewash.

Goose eggs were hanging high in the women's Matinee bowling league yesterday at Colony alleys yesterday, every one of the four matches ending in a shutout.

Victims of the whitewash brush included the league leading Max Diners and second place Schmutzlers.

Kate Warga took scoring honors with a 537 series, while Sis DeWeese had high game of 208.

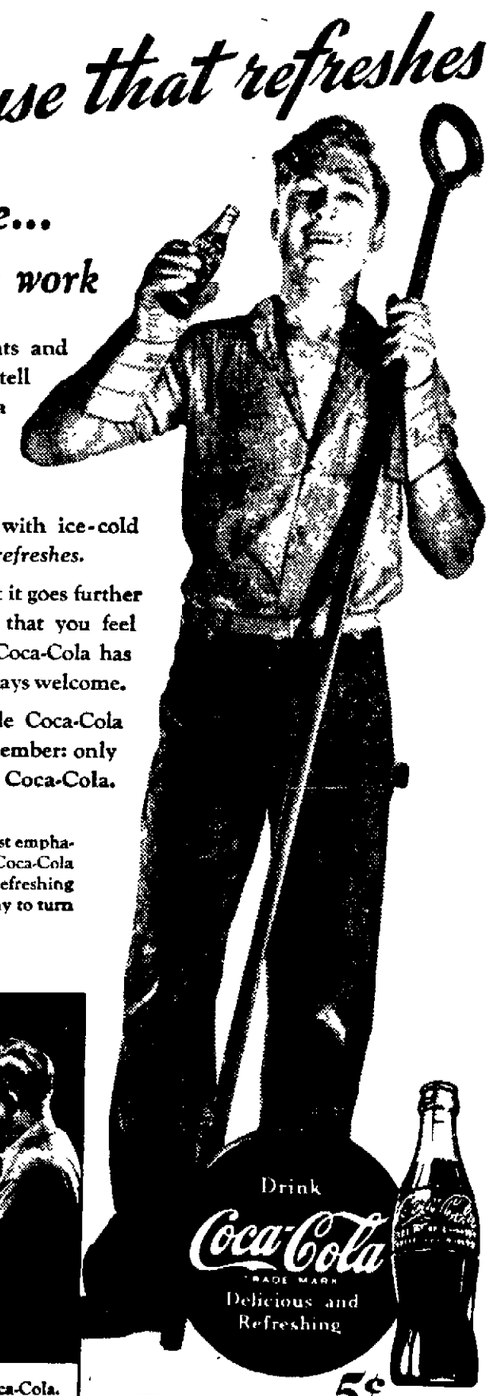
The rest-pause that refreshes

Welcome in peace... more welcome in war work



IN letter after letter from war plants and factories, managers write in to tell how important they consider Coca-Cola in providing energy-giving refreshment for workers . . . in helping output and morale. Of course, workers in war plants welcome a rest-pause . . . with ice-cold Coca-Cola to make it the pause that refreshes.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola quenches thirst. But it goes further to add pure, wholesome refreshment that you feel and enjoy. Made with a finished art, Coca-Cola has a taste all its own . . . a goodness you always welcome.

Popularity with war-workers has made Coca-Cola the symbol of the rest-pause. And remember: only The Coca-Cola Company produces Coca-Cola.

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things . . . a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

A breathing spell, a rest-pause and ice-cold Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our neighbors and many friends for their services rendered in different ways during our recent misfortune. Also want to thank all those who sent me cards and beautiful flowers while I was confined to the Galion City Hospital.

Lewis L. Rinehart and Family. (C-k)

WE WISH to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends, neighbors and relatives for their many acts of kindness during the death of Mrs. Lydia Beer. We especially wish to thank the Wappner Funeral Home for their kind assistance and the ministers for their consoling words. Everyone who sent flowers, the pallbearers and anyone who helped in anyway.

The Family. (B-k)

Time Your Travel to Ease the Mid-Summer Rush

Choose the Spring Months for Needed Health and Business Trips

Correct timing takes on new importance these days — particularly when it helps vital wartime transportation. When a trip for well-earned rest or recuperation or for business is necessary, time it right — go before the mid-summer rush when travel is heavily concentrated in a two-month period, or postpone your travel until after this peak season. By helping to even-up travel, you make it possible for every bus seat to work full time on every trip.

Buses will serve you better, also, if you pick mid-week days rather than week-ends — and choose, from the many daily schedules, the buses which usually have more seats available. It's smart to get this and other wartime travel information from Greyhound in advance.

STOCKS STEADY FOLLOWING DIP OF YESTERDAY

Another Slight Drop Shown In Power Output During Week Ended April 10.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks were steadier today after yesterday's sharp dip and most leaders posted fractional gains in early market dealings.

Improved at the start were U. S. steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Western Union, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck and Kennicott. Rails were generally unchanged to a shade higher.

Business trend watchers noted the Edison Electric Institute's weekly report which showed another slight dip in power output for the week ended April 10. Distribution amounted to 3,882,467,000 kilowatt hours compared with 3,889,858,000 in the previous period and 3,320,858,000 in the same time last year.

THEATERS

Play Themselves.

Once in a blue moon a screen star gets an opportunity to play himself in a picture and fans usually get as big a kick out of it as does the star himself. Paramount's musical comedy "Star Spangled Rhythm," now at the Ohio features more than three dozen stars doing self-portrayals. Among the stars are Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, Ray Milland, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Verna Zorina Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Rochester, William Bendix and Jerry Colona. As a supplement to the main attraction, "Postmark-U. S. A." is being shown. It is the story of a letter from home received by a young American aviator "somewhere out there."

Mexican Star.

Making her bow as a leading member of the Orson Welles Mercury Players, Dolores del Rio plays one of the most unusual roles of her career in the latest Mercury production for RKO Radio, "Journey Into Fear." The screen beauty is seen as an adagio dancer playing second-rate cafes of southeastern Europe, and in the role has one opportunity to don a spectacular wardrobe. Her striking jaguar skin dancing costume worn in cafe sequence is a highlight of the picture. Opposite Miss del Rio is Joseph Cotton as an American naval ordnance expert who finds himself being tracked by agents determined to kill him. Co-attraction is "He's My Guy," starring Joan Davis.

Red Skelton Film.

Red Skelton returned to the screen as "The Fox," the detective character he portrayed in "Whistling in the Dark," in another comedy-adventure film, "Whistling in Dixie," which opens at the Ritz tomorrow. Skelton and Ann Rutherford, who plays his sweetheart, find themselves enmeshed in a murder mystery in an old southern town, and participate in one comical adventure after another. Johnny Mack Brown is starred in the western drama, "Ghost Rider," co-attraction at the Ritz. When Brown, as the mysterious Ghost Rider sets out to "get" the members of a gang of renegades who murdered his family, things happen fast and furious.

subject to reasonable censorship."

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R.) Mich., was designated by Ferguson to introduce the resolution in his absence. Ferguson is with the Truman committee investigating the huge army experimental tire station at Wright Field, O.

It also was disclosed that Ferguson had registered a vigorous protest against a reported plan to abandon rationing for the delegates and families attending the conference.

The issue of press coverage for the food meetings was raised late yesterday by Rep. Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the house, who declared both newsmen and congressmen should be permitted to attend the conference.

Legislation will undoubtedly emanate as a result of the conferences, Martin said, "and the members of congress and the press should have the opportunity of getting their information first hand."

Informed by what he believed to be a reliable source that the office of price administration had decided to lift the ration ban for the delegates, Ferguson wrote a letter of inquiry to Price Administrator Prentice M. Brown. Brown has not replied.

LEAGUE BRINGS WOMAN EXPERT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS TO CITY

As a part of its momentum-gaining campaign to encourage thinking along the lines of internationalism, as opposed to isolationism the Mansfield League of Women Voters will bring to Mansfield on April 20, Louise Leonard Wright of Chicago, noted traveler and lecturer.

Mrs. Wright will speak at a public meeting at 8 p. m. in the First Presbyterian church. Her subject will be "World Trade and the Peace."

The speaker is the wife of Quincy Wright, history professor at the University of Chicago. She is a director of the National League of Women Voters and is a recognized authority in the field of foreign affairs. She is the author of two handbooks, "Toward a Collective Peace System" and "American Neutrality," and also drew up a foreign policy "quiz" which has been used by the Mansfield league among its membership to permit members to gauge their thinking in terms of foreign policy.

Mrs. Wright has attended sessions of the League of Nations at Geneva and has visited Palestine,

LOUISE LEONARD WRIGHT

Syria, Iraq and China. She has also attended five sessions of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and attended the Lima conference in 1938, as ad adviser to the U. S. delegation.

She is scheduled to speak in Cleveland on April 22, delivering the final lecture of a series of four on the general topic, "World Trade and the Peace."

Under the direction of Mrs. D. O. Moese as president the Mansfield League of Women Voters is conducting an active campaign for "Internationalistic Thinking." It has backed the senate proposal for a study of peace aims, as embodied in the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution, and has also urged support of the renewal of the reciprocal trade agreement plan, now in committee.

At its April 5 meeting, the league heard an explanation of both the reciprocal trade agreement plan and the lend-lease program by Attorney J. Howard Gongwer.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—One of the most important differences of outlook between the British and American stabilization proposals concerns whether stabilization machinery is to be used also for any broader postwar purposes.

When this point was brought up to Secretary Morgenthau he was emphatic in stating that the American treasury viewpoint was against using the stabilization machinery for control of anything else. He said the task of stabilizing world currencies was sufficiently difficult in itself without loading extraneous tasks onto the mechanism.

Clapper

Washington expects entirely different agencies to be set up for other purposes such as rehabilitation development. The stabilization fund is exclusively a project to facilitate trade.

The British, on the other hand, conceive of the clearing union which they propose as possibly becoming the pivot of the future economic government of the world. The Keynes plan states that the greatest possible emphasis should be given to the usefulness of the clearing union in serving other purposes. Several such purposes are suggested.

The clearing union might handle the financing for postwar relief rehabilitation and reconstruction. It might finance any international policing body that might be created. For instance, if a country were to infringe its properly authorized orders the policing body might request the clearing union to impose a financial blockade on the delinquent country. The clearing union might also finance commodity control and ever-normal granaries. It is also conceived of as possibly becoming a governor in steadying the trade cycle by exercising contractionist or expansionist influence on trade in general as the need might arise.

The British contend that their broader plan requires no greater surrender of their sovereign rights than in a commercial treaty. The obligations are to be terminated on certain conditions by giving notice. The plan embhasizes that greater readiness to enter supernational arrangements must be required in the postwar world. It is an advantage and not a disadvantage, the British plan points out, that it invites member states to abandon the license to promote indiscipline, disorder and bad-neighborliness, which to the general disadvantage, they have been free to exercise hitherto.

In these two plans the basis has been laid for give and take. It would be unfortunate if in the public discussion each side became adamant concerning details.

The necessary thing to do, and the most important purpose of both plans, is to abolish barter arrangements and the trick currencies which were coming into vogue through the Nazi example. Both plans look toward the establishment of a real international monetary standard based on gold as a yardstick. Both plans undertake to insure that currencies of all countries would have a fixed standard of value in international trade and would not be subject to the harmful effects of depreciation.

The American plan can be put into effect by transferring for the purpose the present two-billion-dollar stabilization fund. This fund has been operating for several years and has actually made a small profit. Partly because of the stabilization operations it was possible when the war broke out to continue trade without any disastrous effects due to panic or currency dislocation.

One other consideration makes something of this kind highly desirable. For several years the United States has been buying a good part of the current output of gold. We have been doing this by exchanging goods to other countries for it.

The gold has simply been dug up in Africa, brought over here and buried in the ground at Fort Knox while we have given in exchange for it useful commodities such as wheat, cotton and manufactured products. We have now accumulated 22 billion dollars' worth of gold. We hold several billion more for foreign countries. We hold perhaps 75 or 80 per cent of all gold.

There is no advantage to us or to anyone else in an indefinite continuation of such a one-sided accumulation. An international stabilization fund or clearing arrangement may help to correct this situation for the benefit of ourselves as well as others.

HUNT 2 BODIES AFTER ALCATRAZ PRISON BREAK

Guards Search Bay Following Capture of Two Convicts Who Fled 'Rock.'

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO — Prison guards and local law enforcement officers searched the waters and shores of San Francisco Bay today for the bodies of two of four long-term Alcatraz convicts who escaped custody yesterday in the most daring break in the "rock's" history.

Two other convicts were recaptured, one hauled from the icy riptides that race past the island penitentiary after he and two companions were halted by a hail of bullets, the other dragged from a cave north of the prison several hours later.

Only one of the convicts was known to be dead. He was James A. Boarman, 24, Kentucky bank robber serving a 20-year term, who was riddled by bullets from guards' rifles and was seen to sink 300 yards off shore.

Floyd Hamilton, 35, Arkansas bank robber, also was caught in the fusillade from the prison launch and it was believed he was slain. Although Alcatraz officials said it was impossible he could have survived either his wounds or the long swim to the mainland through the choppy water, Hamilton was tentatively listed as still "at large."

Captured shortly after the abortive break was Harold Brest, 31-year-old Pittsburgh, Pa., kidnaper. He was wounded in the arm and pulled into the prison launch, naked and covered with a thick coating of grease.

Brest also said Hamilton was only 50 yards away at the time Boarman vanished beneath the surface and that he believed "Hamilton got it too."

Fred Hunter, 44, Ohio bank robber, was the last of the quartet to be accounted for. Six hours after the break, he was recaptured by guards as he cowered in a cave on the north shore of the "rock."

Describing the break as "sensational," Warden James A. Johnston said it was made as the convicts were at work in the yard, making concrete blocks. The four desperate men overpowered Guard Captain Henry Weinhold, bound and gagged him and tossed him into a building. Then they took the same measures with Custodial Officer George Smith.

Stripping to their undershirts, the men coated their bodies with grease which they had been using on the block moulds and slipped through a model shop window facing the Golden Gate. Three of them plunged into the bay, while Hunter dashed along the shore towards the north end of the island.

The attempted break was seen by another guard who sprayed the men with bullets from his rifle and then turned in the alarm.

Police and coast guard boats joined the chase and the fleeing prisoners were halted 300 yards from shore.

VICTORY WON'T BE EASY, SAYS DINNER SPEAKER

Dr. A. P. Haake Cites Need For Adequate Military Supplies, Hard Work To Get Them.

No easy road to victory in the war is seen by Dr. Alfred P. Haake, of Chicago, speaker at last night's joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

With "What Price Victory?" as his subject, Dr. Haake strongly stressed the point that appropriations of billions of dollars in money will not win the war—that victory can only be achieved by adequate military supplies and that the only way these can be produced is by hard work.

"We must accept a lower standard of living for everybody," Dr. Haake said, "We cannot lick the Germans and Japs by squirting dollars at them.

"The real cost of war is in goods and the only way to produce more goods is by doing more work. Since we have a manpower shortage the requirement is for more production per man per hour.

"We can print money and make government loans without limit, but this will mean nothing unless the money is transformed into fighting equipment.

"We cannot produce enough goods for both the war effort and to maintain standards of living at their present levels and it has been a mistake to lead people to believe that this can be done. What was said by President Roosevelt on this subject a few days ago should have been made clear to the people of this country two years ago. After we use what must be used for the war effort we will have to live on what is left, and our standards of living will shrink to meet that requirement."

Specific and authenticated instances of slow-downs in production of war supplies, because of arbitrarily fixed maximums, were cited by the speaker as proof that all-out war effort by the available manpower supply has not yet been reached. In a mention of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's effort to encourage larger production in war industries, Dr. Haake said: "It is stupid to cuss Eddie Rickenbacker and indulge in name-calling. If what he says is not true the answer to him is to show that it is not true. If what he says is true those who are responsible should move to correct the conditions he names."

As an introductory feature, following the dinner, Maurice Stretch and Lawrence Chamberlain, Westinghouse entertainers, gave their musical and dialogue skit, "Ray and Eddie."

Harry B. Soulen, president of the Rotary club, presided at the meeting, with Ruhland D. Isaly as program chairman.

That line in a column saying that Follies girl Marianne O'Brien and Freddy de Cordova were ignited has Marianne's real wholesome Charlie Martin, in a condition.

FABLES FROM THE FORTIES: Eighteen years ago, a talented young colored girl won praiseful notices from the critics for her performances in "Shuffle Along" and "Blackbirds." She sang. She played almost every instrument in the band. At the height of her career she even played trumpet solos with Paul Whiteman and Paul Ash.

Then she sailed over to Europe, and little was heard of her over here except now and then a word that she was a click in Paris, or Budapest, or some other big city on the continent.

She was still in Europe when Hitler's war came in. In 1940 she was thrown into a concentration camp in Denmark and beaten and starved until her weight dropped to less than 80 pounds. Friends who heard of her plight appealed to President Roosevelt, and in August, 1942, she was returned to America in exchange for Anna Hoffman, the manicurist spy of the Bremen.

Since she returned, she has been nursed back to health and she's making a new start in her profession. She opened last week at the Apollo theater in Harlem.

And there is no performer on or off Broadway who knows better than Valada Snow what it means to be singing your songs in a free world.

ADMITS PUSHING BOYS OFF CLIFF

Youth Charged With Murder In Deaths of Two Lads From Trailer Camp.

(By International News Service)

GOLDEN, Colo. — A formal murder charge was to be filed in Golden district court today to climax what authorities described as Colorado's most gruesome juvenile crime.

Deputy District Attorney Martin C. Molholm said William Eugene Wymer, 16, of Denver, would be charged with the deaths of Donald J. Mattas, eight, and Milo M. Flindt, 11, who lived at a trailer camp west of Denver.

Molholm said Wymer had confessed to Sheriff Howard Vincent that he pushed the little boys off the 175-foot cliff known as Castle Rock, overlooking Golden. The sheriff said Wymer's motive apparently was to hide the fact he had stolen the boys' shoes, socks and a cheap watch.

Sheriff Vincent said he first had believed the deaths of Donald and Milo had been accidental. Later, he said, he questioned seven other small boys who said they had happened along shortly after the crime.

"The boys said they talked to Milo Flindt, who was still alive," Sheriff Vincent reported. "They said they were afraid to report the incident because they thought they would be blamed for it. Later, however, they told their parents about what they had seen."

The accused youth said he was born in Toledo, O. He said his mother and father were divorced and that his mother had remarried. She now lives in Denver. He said the only other time he had been in trouble was last year when he stole a car at Texline, Tex.

Boys who have been practicing trail blazing in the pioneer manner at the new John Todd park have damaged nearly a score of the park's big shade trees. Deep cuts, apparently made by hatchets or hunting axes, have appeared on 17 or 18 trees, and Parks Superintendent Frank Burton is looking for the youthful "pioneers" who think it's necessary to mark their park trails. Burton said the boys will be turned over to juvenile authorities when he learns their identity. Meanwhile, he and Clarence Silcott, assistant city engineer, are surveying the park, getting ready to build a baseball diamond and properly marked nature trails through the park.

One contains food sent prisoners of war to supplement their prison diet. It contains canned corned beef, sardines and salmon, Prem, powdered milk, oleomargarine, liver paste, cheese, luncheon biscuits, sugar, emergency ration D chocolate, concentrated fruit juice, concentrated coffee, cigarets and soap. The other package is a waterproof bag provided for survivors of torpedoed ships. This bag contains overalls, underwear, socks, slippers, towel, shaving soap and razor and a toothbrush.

PAY INCREASE OFFER DENIED

Over Half Million Workers To Be Affected By Refusal of Voluntary Raise.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Voluntary offers by 10,000 employers to raise wages and salaries will be denied as a result of the war labor board's refusal to permit adjustment of inequalities and inequities.

There was no official estimate of how many employes this would affect, but unofficial estimates ranged from half a million to a million. Most of the cases involve fewer than 100 employes each. Denials in the dispute cases, which usually affect a larger number, will raise the total substantially.

The WLB laid down its first formal application of the president's hold-the-line order of April 8 in a decision late yesterday declaring it "proposes to carry out strictly the spirit and intent as well as the literal meaning" of the anti-inflation order.

Simultaneously the WLB announced it had instructed local boards to "deny at once all proposed wage and salary adjustments which involve only interplant inequalities and which cannot be decided on the basis of the little steel formula or substandards of living."

The board estimated this would result in disapproval of about 10,000 of the 17,000 cases on hand in the 12 regional offices.

CIO President Philip Murray told all affiliated unions in a letter yesterday they should contend for WLB's right to correct inequalities by approving wage increases and that this could best be done by bringing specific cases to the attention of James F. Byrnes, stabiliation director. Murray also urged that the unions make full use of the permission to increase earnings through reclassifications and local incentive plans.

BACK IN O. S. R.

Fugitive Surrenders After Police Surround Him.

After less than four hours of freedom, an escaped Mansfield reformatory inmate gave himself up to Shelby police without argument yesterday afternoon when officers surrounded him in a woods near Vernon Junction.

John Halesz, 24, serving a one-to-20-year term from Lucas county for auto theft, came out of the woods with his arms raised in surrender as Police Chief Leroy Coffey of Shelby approached his hiding place.

Reformatory guards traced him to the Vernon Junction area southwest of Shelby and summoned police to help in the search.

Halisz walked away from the reformatory farm shortly before 11 a. m. yesterday and was back again before mid-afternoon with the usual two years added to his sentence for the escape. He entered the institution last June 15.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Mischa Auer, who fancies himself quite a cook (and who may be, for all I know) has threatened to invite me out for a fillet of filly or some other allegedly edible form of gee-gee.

There are three horse meat shops in this vicinity, but just how the townspeople will take to hippophagism, or the eating of pate de Man O'War, Brochette de my Friend Flicka or Black Beauty Stew remains to be seen.

Coons

Just in case I cannot avoid the Auer invitation, I looked into the horse situation from a culinary standpoint and find there are some in Hollywood who claim that it is pretty good stuff. The flavor is sweet and on the gamey side, as with other such active quadrupeds as deer and elk.

* * *

Friend Fred Beck, who once, entirely by accident, he insists, served up a can of dog food in the mistaken belief that he had corned beef hash, has had an academic interest in horseflesh since. It wasn't until after he had swallowed three mouthfuls (he was quite hungry) that he became aware he was doing away with something intended for Rover and he would have become quite ill, he is sure, if he hadn't had within reach a flagon of 100 proof stuff with which to dissipate the strange taste.

As I say, when this Auer invitation came along, I beseeched Fred to give me the benefit of his studies into the cooking of the beast of burden.

Among the classic horse meat dishes, if Fred's translation from the culinary French is reasonably accurate, are "Cubes of Young Colt on Skewer, Broiled," and "Cold Jellied Horse's Tail Consomme."

A dip into the gastronomical works of Escoffier gave him the impression that the same rules for cooking venison apply to playing around in the kitchen with a hunk of man's best friend.

* * *

And so my friend Mischa (and you, too, dear reader) if you are to serve horse meat, broil the choicer cuts. While the usual beef stewing principles would apply, most of the roasts are best when marinated. You put your roast down in red wine and water—half-and-half. Peppercorns and bay leaves and herbs to suit are added and your roast slumbers in the marinade, in a covered earthen crock, for 12 to 48 hours, depending on the tenderness of the cut. Turn it, of course, once or twice during the procedure. A rump roast of horse should take a 48-hour treatment. Remove it from the crock (are you still with us, Mischa?), drain it, and cook it as a pot roast or a beef a la mode or as sauerbraten—basting with the wine in which it has become tender and succulent.

Then serve it forth (the more I think about it the less I think of it, Mischa) while I slip over to the drugstore for a peanut butter sandwich.

And to think that I once put $2 on the nose of a steak!

Gee and also haw!

PUNCTURE AXIS SIEGE LINES IN NORTH TUNISIA

Allied Spearheads Crowding Rommel as Planes Pound Key Airfields.

were frustrated," the Nazi communique declared.

Field dispatches said an Algiers radio report yesterday that Enfidaville had been captured appeared premature.

Communique No. 159 from Allied headquarters said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army vanguards "continued to advance to the north and made contact with enemy prepared positions" between Enfidaville and the Djebel (mountain) Bou Hadjar.

Enfidaville, the southern anchor of Rommel's new 100-mile-long defense zone, lies 50 miles below Tunis, the capital.

"On their left," the communique said, "French forces continued their advance.

"The British First army made further advances in the Medjez El Bab-Munchar sector in the face of enemy opposition yesterday and during the previous night."

Medjez El Bab is 36 miles southwest of Tunis.

In the skies, Allied warplanes pounded Rommel's dwindling air fields in the Tunisian box, and U. S. Flying Fortresses swept across the Mediterranean narrows to blast airdromes in Sicily.

The Flying Fortresses, striking at Castelvetrano and Milo airfields in Sicily, caught more than 200 enemy planes on the ground.

When the Fortresses dropped their cascade of bombs at Castelvetrano, an official report said, 112 large enemy transports were on the field and reconnaissance showed 51 destroyed and others seriously damaged.

At Milo 106 planes were on the ground and 22 were wrecked. In addition the fliers set fire to a gasoline dump.

Eleven more Axis planes were destroyed in air fighting, four of them by the Fortresses battling their way back from the raid.

The assault on the German air force in Tunisia also continued, with night bombers hitting Legrine airdrome on the outskirts of Tunis and blasting Oudna landing ground 12 miles south of Tunis.

Most of the planes destroyed on the ground by the Fortresses were transports.

While the Berlin radio asserted there would be no attempt at a Dunkirk escape, London military quarters declared that even if it were attempted, Rommel would not be able to get one-tenth of his forces safely across the sea under attack by hundreds of Allied warplanes and the mighty guns of the British Mediterranean fleet.

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches declared today heavy German attacks could be expected within the next two or three weeks—perhaps marking the start of Hitler's 1943 spring offensive—and said the Nazis were massing troops and supplies in many sectors along the 1,200-mile battleline.

While the land front remained bogged down by mud, air battles erupted with mounting fierceness, and dispatches said there was reason to believe that Soviet-flown U. S. planes were engaging in many operations.

Mistakes Montgomery For a Sergeant

CAIRO—(AP)—Sgt. Worden F. Lovell of Malden, Mass., a United States Army photographer, is one of the most embarrassed men in Tunisia.

Scurrying along in a jeep to catch up with an advanced unit of the Eighth army in the Gabes area, he asked a group of soldiers in battledress for direction. Instead of answering, one of the soldiers asked him why he wanted to know.

"I was in a helluva rush and in no mood to carry on a conversation," Lovell related. "I told him so very plainly."

They swapped a few personal remarks and the soldier walked away.

"That fellow must be a sergeant the way he talked to me," Lovell remarked to a British photographer nearby.

"Oh, no," said the Briton, "that's Montgomery."

"Some of us have been made uncomfortable, have had to sacrifice a little, but most of us haven't really had much austerity or terror," she said.

'Mystery Boy' Continues To Puzzle County Authorities

of all those who have questioned him, took him to various former residents of the Lucas-Perrysville vicinity in Mansfield this morning and plans to take the boy with him to that locality this afternoon.

"I think I would know the house," he told the sheriff in what appeared to be his sincerest effort to co-operate with him. "It has three rooms, a dining room, a living room and a kitchen."

Asked if there was a barn, since the boy had told of a pig and chickens his grandmother owned, he replied, "they are kept in the back yard. There is no barn."

Credence that the child may have come from some institution was lent by the fact, authorities said, that he assisted a matron in the Salvation Army placing a blanket on his bed last night, that he made the bed without reminding this morning, and that he immediately hangs up his coat when he enters the room. He says further, that he slept at the same place where he attended school, before he came to the home of his grandmother.

On the other hand, authorities said they believe that if the child had escaped from an Ohio institution they would have been advised of his disappearance before this time.

At another time, the boy said he believed he formerly lived in Akron and that he thought it was the "McBride" school there where he attended the fifth grade while he lived with some people named "Fiduci."

Questioned as to what buildings he could see from his school, he finally said "Goodyear."

County Attendance Officer Harry Sir Louis, an Akron native, said there was a Mackebright school near one of the Goodyear buildings. Sir Louis said he would communicate with attendance officers there in an attempt to identify the boy's relatives or locate the "Fiduci" family.

First report on the progress of the membership drive to enroll 1,000 members will be made tonight when the workers meet at the drive headquarters from 7 to 9.

She indicated that this would aid the workers who are hampered by transportation facilities.

Linham had one call yesterday from Bellville where a housewife wanted a Mansfield truck to call for her cans. Linham said no collections would be made outside the city. The truck will cover the Second ward today and Thursday and the Third ward Friday and Saturay.

Meanwhile, the first report on the city's grease collection today showed that 2,897 pounds of kitchen fat was turned in to Mansfield markets in March. The fat was sold to a Wapakoneta, O., firm which issued the report. Contributions showed a marked increase when the women block leaders began their campaign, civilian defense officials said.

underside have been going forward side by side with those for defeating Rommel, it is likely that there will be considerable re-grouping and re-outfitting for the British First and Eighth armies and the American forces before they start across the Mediterranean.

While no information probably will be given out, it might be supposed that second front operations in northern Europe will not get under way until the southern European expeditionary force has won a strong foothold.

The Allied ability to launch simultaneous invasions of north and south Europe obviously is limited by shipping capacity, which in turn is affected strongly by the progress of the battle of the Atlantic.

BAD NEWS

Snow, Wintry Blasts To Stay, Weatherman Predicts.

More snow and wintry blasts were forecast today by the weatherman who apparently forgot that spring is more than three weeks old.

Brief snow squalls which left a white covering on the ground last night were expected to continue today and the mercury was due to drop far below freezing again tonight. This morning's low was 21 and it was only 27, five degrees below freezing, at noon. The average of 30.5 degrees was 17 below normal.

County Agent George B. Ganyard said early garden crops probably won't suffer much damage unless the unseasonable cold continues for several days. Peas, lettuce, onions, and radishes can withstand considerable cold, he said. Fruit buds were not believed far enough advanced to be hit very hard by the freezing temperatures.

CATLETT GETS 'HOT SPOT' ON LABOR MEASURE

County Representative Named Head of Sub-Committee To Study French Measure.

Ohio CIO council, told the full judiciary committee last night that the French bill would create confusion and delay of the war effort by forcing renegotiation of present labor contracts and warned the bill would endanger collective bargaining rights and control of membership by labor organizations.

L. M. Evans, Cleveland, speaking as a small businessman, warned the committee that regulation of unions was inevitable, as business has been regulated.

William Snow, Toledo attorney, assumed full responsibility for writing the French bill and told the committee that continuing evidence of violence in labor disputes showed the necessity for union regulation.

The French bill would provide for a three-member labor commission, the members to be appointed by the governor and to receive $8,000 a year. It would limit union dues to $3 a month and initiation fees to $5, and restricts the check-off system of collecting union dues to employes who have made a formal request to their employer that he deduct dues payments.

Another controversial labor measure—concerning relaxation of female and child labor standards, was before the senate.

Senate leaders announced the controversial Ross bill which in its present form would establish a basic 52-hour work week for women will reach the floor for debate next Tuesday.

Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore said he believed 19 or 20 senators would vote for 52-hour provisions of the Ross bill. A caucus of senate Republicans split 13-13 in March 17 over the issue of a 52-versus 48 hour work week.

Whittemore predicted amendments to the Ross bill proposed jointly by labor organizations and the Ohio Chamber of Commerce would be rejected. These amendments would fix the standard maximum work week at 48 hours except in war production crises, and leave enforcement in the hands of the state industrial relations director, instead of factory inspectors and the state health department as provided in the present bill.

The vote Whittemore anticipated would be insufficient to carry the measure as an emergency bill, but the senate leader said industry "has gotten along for 15 months under present laws and probably can carry on another 90 days until this bill would become effective."

The present bill, he said, apparently was satisfactory to Governor Bricker.

MEAT CEILING DATE DELAYED

OPA Decides To Re-Examine Charge Schedules.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The office of prince administration today postponed for one month the effective date of new retail beef, veal, lamb and mutton price ceilings to permit a re-examination of the prices in light of President Roosevelt's recent "hold-the-line" anti-inflation order.

The specific dollars and cents retail ceilings were to have taken effect tomorrow.

WARNS JAPS SET FOR OFFENSIVE

MacArthur Says Enemy Ready For Struggle To Control Far Pacific Skies.

land bases held by ground troops, all supported by naval power."

". . . If the enemy wins control of the air, his naval units can at once bring forward convoys of ground forces to continue his attack to the southward to a limit imposed only by the range of his land-based air support."

MacArthur's statement, a general review of the strategic position of the United Nations in the South Pacific, followed by only a few hours the publication in Australian papers of Washington dispatches quoting Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox as saying the Japanese lacked sufficient naval concentrations in the South Pacific at the moment for an invasion of Australia.

Knox's statement followed an assertion by Gen. Sir Thomas A. Blamey, Australian commander of Allied ground forces in the southwest Pacific, that Japan had massed 200,000 first-line troops on the approaches to this continent and might be expected to launch an offensive at any time.

MacArthur appeared to back Blamey's conclusions when he said:

"A primary threat to Australia does not . . . require a great initial local concentration of naval striking power. It requires rather a sufficient concentration of land-based aviation.

"As a matter of fact, Japanese naval forces in great strength, although beyond our bomber range, are within easy striking distance of Australia.

"The vital factors, therefore, in the southwest Pacific, with its littoral of countless island groups and innumerable archipelagic reaches, are the air forces to strike and the ground forces to conquer and hold.

"The Allied naval forces can be counted upon to play their own magnificent part but the battle of the western Pacific will be won or lost by the proper application of the air-ground team."

Australian Prime Minister John Curtin, amplifying General Blamey's warning, said the Japanese "apparently are contemplating further attacks against New Guinea and the Solomons."

On the Burma front, British headquarters announced that Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's forces frustrated new Japanese attempts to infiltrate into reformed British lines in the Gyindaw sector, along the Bay of Bengal, north of the Mayu peninsula.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters, obviously exaggerating, asserted that the Japanese had destroyed 465 Allied planes, killed 4,200 British soldiers, captured 516 prisoners, and sunk or damaged 34 ships off the coast during the Burma campaign prior to April 10.

Japan raised a bogie-man threat of bombing the United States as Maj.-Gen. Kenryo Sato, chief of the bureau of military affairs, declared preparations were completed for "a vast air attack on the American mainland."

Sato said Japanese, German and Italian air forces would collaborate in the assault.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1943.

Author unknown: "The best place to find a helping hand is at the end of your arm."

If Madame Chiang would only stay in this country, Americans might acquire a very extensive and expressive vocabulary.

Adolf Hitler will reach the age of 54 on April 20—and it will be quite appropriate in this country to let observance take the form of buying an extra War Bond.

War's Drain On Oil Resources

WHEN Walter Hallanan, oil executive, in an address at Pittsburgh sounded a note of warning to America about its future oil supplies, he was voicing belief that is increasingly being expressed by men in the petroleum industry—that the rate of consumption balanced against the rate of production has become such that reserves are of paramount importance.

This war is being fought with oil. Both civilian and military transportation are draining the available supply. Multiple uses of oil are expanding the demand for it. Use of petroleum for heating purposes in the United States has become enormous. Great as this nation has ranked as an exporter of oil in the past, domestic consumption promises to expand to the point that it will be forced to turn to imports to meet the demand.

The only solution to this threatened economic development is in the encouragement of exploration and the addition of new fields to renew impaired reserves and maintain them.

'Do-It-Yourself' Suggestion

SHORTAGE of automobile mechanics is said to be growing acute. So serious is the situation in many places, that there is talk of recalling former repair men from war industry jobs to keep essential cars in commission.

There may be other ways, however, to keep 'em rolling. Middle-aged men, harking back to the last war, should remember how fervidly, and even joyfully, they tinkered with their own cars in those days. The maintenance and repair business hadn't developed then to its recent perfection. The average car-owner could often be found, on Saturday afternoon or Sunday, laboring joyfully in a chaos of wrenches, parts and grease, stopping occasionally to read the smeared instructions in the book that came with the car.

Will it be admitted that drivers know less about cars now than they did then? Americans are credited with being "natural mechanics." Most of them, however, have probably been spoiled in recent years by too much mechanical perfection and service.

Hitler Is Building Another Wall

A STRANGELY medieval thing is being done by the Germans for defense against the wave of Allied troops that will sweep against them from the west and south sooner or later. They are building a system of defensive walls all the way from northern Norway southward to Spain.

The outer world expects the Nazis to build modern defenses, but they resort to the most primitive of all forms of military defense. The Chinese built such a wall on their northern border several thousand years ago. The ancient Romans built another across northern England to keep out the warlike Scots. Neither of them proved effective. The French, after the last war, built a wonderful and costly wall on their eastern front to keep out the Germans, and Hitler's armies simply flowed around it.

The Allies, when they move against Germany, may be expected either to smash through the new wall, or go over it, or both. Hitler, with all his modern ideas, seems strangely medieval. The big assault against Germany, from recent indications, may consist mainly of great waves of war planes that simply ignore walls and go about their business.

Job of Manning Cargo Ships

AMERICA'S record production of cargo ships would be in vain if the crews were not available to man them. One of the country's notable war efforts is the training of these crews.

Schools on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts are operating at capacity. They will provide the 80,000 additional seamen and officers needed this year. More than 70,000 men are now engaged in the merchant shipping service.

Manning these freighters presents many potential bottlenecks. On a recent day twenty-five cargo ships would have been held in port for lack of first assistant engineers had not the shipping administration rushed the needed men to the ports. The goal is to provide skilled help in all categories as the ships are launched.

One incentive to recruitment of the needed manpower is the lucrative pay. The base pay of an able-bodied seaman is now $100 a month. He gets a 40 per cent bonus for sailing in coastal waters and 100 per cent for most offshore voyages. A trip to Murmansk and return commands $5 a day extra. If the ship is bombed in port, whether hit or not, an additional bonus of $125 is paid. In addition crews draw considerable overtime pay.

It is not uncommon for sailors, returning to San Francisco after a voyage of three months in the South Pacific, to have accumulated wages of $900 to $1,200.

Oxenstierna Also Noticed It

"GO, MY SON, and see with what little wisdom the world is governed." So, over 300 years ago, spoke Axel Oxenstierna, a great Swedish statesman, speaking out of the fulness of his heart as he looked back on years of watching public affairs.

Every country, at some time or other, has felt like Oxenstierna. But it is unlikely that any other country will echo these words with so much feeling as, some time in the next few years, will Germany, Italy and Japan, looking back on their own efforts to control the world.

Reading and writing would be easier if so many Americans didn't think, for example, that they have to say and write "Dunquerque" when plain "Dunkirk" has been O. K. for ages.

An Akron coed is quoted as having stated as her reason for going to college: "I came to be went with, but ain't yet."

Remember to exchange those stamps for a bond.

COME ON GANG! LET'S HELP FINISH IT

Cost of Gaining Air Superiority, How Bonds Help Hasten Victory

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THIS STARTED out to be a column on the great defeat which we are piling up against the Axis forces in Tunisia, but somehow it's got mixed up with that $13,000,000,000 War Bond drive of ours.

It isn't that I'm particularly money-mined, for I don't know just how much thirteen billion dollars is. Figures like that don't mean much to the average citizen. However, being just back from a 35,000-mile tour of the war theaters, I do know that our troops in Tunisia are being rushed to victory on the backs of your war bonds and mine.

With even more satisfaction one can record that scores of thousands of Allied soldiers' lives are being saved as this bloody battle swirls up the coast toward northern Tunisia where the final Axis stand seems likely to be made.

Only a few weeks ago I visited the Libyan battlefields where not so far back the Allies suffered defeat and heavy casualties, not because they didn't fight courageously, but because they lacked equipment.

We are winning now because we have the equipment as well as the men. One of the things that impressed me most on my tour, as I have recorded in this column before, was the great striking power the Allies are piling up in the European and Middle Eastern theaters. I saw mountainous stores of equipment which are just now beginning to make themselves felt in a big way. And that equipment comes out of our war bonds.

Marshal Rommel is racing north, his defenses in southern and central Tunisia shattered by the combined assault of British, French and American forces. One of the most important elements in the Allied success has been air superiority.

Warplanes helped destroy Rommel's defenses at the outset in the Mareth Line. Bombers have blasted his bases and communications on both land and sea. Clouds of light bombers and fighters at this moment are pulverizing his routed troops and exacting a terrible toll in casualties.

WELL, now an average fighter plane costs something like $165,000. A light bomber is more, and so on up until you pay $350,000 for the Flying Fortress which is doing such magnificent work not only in the Mediterranean zone but over western Europe.

Bombs are being spewed into Rommel's ranks from the air. Every 100-pounder costs over $41, and from there the prices range up to $872 for the big 4,000-pound devil. The machineguns with which the fighters are strafing the unhappy Axis troops cost $1,500 each, and the ammunition runs into big money when you figure the expenditure for a day's work.

A bulletin from London says that fifteen more Axis vessels have been destroyed or damaged in the Mediterranean by British submarines. That cuts Rommel off from a lot more aid. A medium submarine costs maybe $3,000,000. If the British were doing their usual good shooting, and used one torpedo for each ship hit, they would have exploded $165,000 worth of torpedoes, since an average torpedo costs $11,000. I don't know where $165,000 could be invested on more advantageous terms.

I was traveling on an American military transport plane in the Middle East. Opposite me on a stretcher was one of our soldier boys with a broken back. He was being rushed to a city a thousand miles away where there was a hospital which might save his life.

He was a handsome chap and all through the long hours he showed his white teeth in a smile despite his mental anguish, for he knew that his life hung by a thread.

Plane crew and soldier passengers all were solicitous for his welfare. Once the pilot sent back to know if a landing which he had made had been too rough for the injured man. Again the skipper asked if the weather was too rough at the height he was flying.

When I got off the plane I leaned over the stretcher and said:—"Good luck to you, buddy."

"Thank you, sir," he replied, and he flashed that smile.

They were able to move that lad by airplane because our money and labors had produced the plane and delivered it in the war zone. I'm waiting now to learn whether the chap with the smile made the grade.

Timely Editorial

Deadlines Should Be Absolute.

Extension of the 1943 auto license sticker deadline will plague Ohio next year. It will be a headache when the time comes for renewal of driving licenses. The work of years has been undone by suspending the rule that a deadline is intended to be absolute.

Years ago, automobile owners learned to expect extensions of deadlines as a matter of course, with the result that many motorists made a practice of waiting until the first deadline had been passed. The state now has reopened the same primrose path.

Eventually, it will have to be closed again. Undoing the damage won't be easy. There will seem to be a thousand and one good reasons for letting the putter-offers get away with their act. Actually, there is no good reason at all. There was ample time to obtain licenses before the deadline. Those who preferred to wait now are confirmed in their judgment that nothing would be done about them. —Canton Repository.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"MRS. BONES"

I BOUGHT a Jersey cow," I said, arriving home. "She's nine years old and giving milk—will freshen in the fall. So now, when Betsy has her calf, the two will give enough milk for plenty to drink and some for butter, too."

The children were much interested. "What's her name? How does she look? What did she cost? Why didn't you bring her with you?" they chorused.

"I didn't learn her name. She has a young looking head with shiny eyes, good teeth and a low voiced bawl; she cost nearly twice as much as Betsy did—but these are different times. She's as willing a cow as ever wore a good brown hide—and if she's a little thin, her bones are all there, in the right place.

They accused me of attempting levity about an important subject—got their heads together and chose "Mrs. Bones" for the new cow's name . . . she's older and more matronly than Betsy—she'll have seen more of the world—and if she gets plump later on we can shorten it to Missy, or even Bonny—see?"

Mrs. Bones arrived home next day . . . walking quietly in, beside the oldest boy, while my wife and I followed at a little distance, in the family car. Mrs. Bones had nimble feet. Her slender ankles twinkled when she walked. She moved eagerly, quite unlike steady Betsy, whose approaching maternity gives her an added sedateness these days.

That afternoon, the two boys led the stranger on the slope with Betsy's tether. She was avid for the newly sprouted grass, and for a half hour all went well. Then the eight-year-old looked just in time to see four legs sticking stiffly up, where Mrs. Bones had been and violent movements in the brush. He screamed for help.

Sister ran from the house, and they reached the helpless cow. She had wound the tether around her feet and rolled over against a bush. She could neither roll up hill nor down,—but she stretched her neck for a mouthful of grass, and when Sister bent the bush farther down the hill, the cow followed, rolling over it, and scrambled to her feet like a goat, beginning to chew.

Already she has improved in quantity of milk. A pitcher of cool rich milk from the spring each morning and evening is a luxury not only in war years, but anytime. For us who live so near the earth, it tastes better that we produce it by labor of our own hands and by the great kindness of Betsy and Mrs. Bones.

Diplomats Admit Tragic Mistake In Boycotting Spanish Loyalists

WASHINGTON—Today in the state department many of the reactionaries will admit they made a tragic mistake in boycotting the Spanish Loyalist government during the Spanish civil war.

Had the career boys not thrown the United States on the side of Franco—and indirectly on the side of Mussolini and Hitler who were supplying Franco with arms—the American army in North Africa today would not have to keep troops marking time on the borders of Spanish Morocco, worried over a Fascist thrust from Spain.

Even more important, many diplomats now believe that had the dictators been crushed in their practice war in Spain; had the United States shown it meant to throw its weight firmly behind democracies, the present war might never have happened.

Believing this even at that time—in 1936 and 1937—several hundred American youngsters went to Spain, enlisted in the famous Abraham Lincoln Brigade, fought for the freely elected Spanish Republican government against Franco. Many of them were wounded. Many were killed, among them the son of Ring Lardner, famous American humorist. Those who came back, possessed a first hand knowledge of modern warfare — warfare which many West Point graduates who run the U. S. army had not then tasted.

One Who Caught On.

IN GERMANY, Hitler used the Spanish civil war to test out planes, tanks and men.

But in the United States, most of the men who risked their lives to fight in the Lincoln Brigade against the dictators have experienced a peculiar fate. When they enlisted in the American army, they say they were discriminated against, cross-questioned as if they were social outcasts, and many of them thrown into service battalions, which means kitchen police, cleaning stables, and doing manual labor for the duration.

Those few Spanish war veterans who have been given a chance, have used their previous fighting experience to great advantage. Captain Hermann Battcher, called the Sergeant York of the Pacific, rose from sergeant to captain, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart with Clusters.

However, Battcher is not an American citizen. All who volunteered to fight in Spain lost their citizenship at the instigation of the Career Boys in the state department. Furthermore, Battcher got into the war early, before the war department clapped down a thinly veiled discrimination against veterans of the Lincoln Brigade.

Lt. Colonel to Private.

FOR INSTANCE, here is the experience of several youngsters who fought against Fascism in Spain and who wanted to fight against it in the American army.

Approximately one year ago, John Gates, a lieutenant colonel of the 15th International Brigade in Spain, enlisted in the U. S. army. In Spain Vincent Sheean and Herbert Matthews of the New York Times cabled back dispatches on his bravery. In the U. S. army he joined the 59th Armored Artillery Battalion, Camp Chafee, Ark., where he became a sergeant. Then as his unit was about to go overseas, his commander received a telegram from the Adjutant General in Washington ordering Gates transferred to a service unit—which means no combat service throughout the war.

No explanation was given. Two lieutenant colonels thought so much of Gates that they intervened. But nothing happened. There was only mysterious silence in Washington.

Finally Gates sent a letter to President Roosevelt.

"There is no greater honor," he wrote, "than to fight for one's country. Am I so base that I should be denied that right? What better way to prove one's loyalty than on the field of battle?"

"I am supremely confident that if a board of officers were to review the case, or a special investigating officer appointed, the recommendation would be to return to my former unit. Our men are fighting gloriously in Africa and the Pacific. I only ask to take my place alongside of them."

But the letter got no further than the war department. No board of review was appointed. Apparently Sergeant Gates had committed the untorgivable crime of fighting for Loyalist Spain.

This is only one of many, many cases. George Cook, a lieutenant in the Lincoln Brigade, entered the Ft. Benning, Ga., officers training school, 23rd Company, last December. All his mail was opened and read. He attained a high standing in his class, but suddenly in the eighth week of training, he was yanked out and transferred to the medical department along with over-age men. No explanation was given and no board of review granted.

"Some Unseen Hand."

ANOTHER case is that of Sergeant Irving Fajans, also in the Ft. Benning officers training school, 29th company. He had been wounded in action in Spain, attained high marks in officers' school, had been permitted to buy his uniform and make all preparations for receiving a commission.

But one day before graduation, he was suddenly told he could not graduate and was transferred to the 4th Service Command, Atlanta, where he will work out the war.

Then there is the case of Morris Brier, who entered officers training school at Camp Croft, 17th Company, was rated second in his class, but on March 23, three days before graduation, after purchasing his officer's uniform, was told for some mysterious and unexplained reason that he could not graduate. He was transferred to a headquarters station complement.

These are only a few of many cases where some unseen hand, similar to the influences found in both the state and war departments in the past, have reached in to penalize the youngsters who were far-sighted enough to see what was going on in Spain and to risk their lives to stop it.

Meanwhile the war department has commissioned as a major Harry Brown, of York, Pa., even while he was indicted for tax frauds (later convicted); and also commissioned as lieutenant-colonel Freeman Burford, of Dallas, Tex., previously indicated on a charge of conspiring "to defraud the United States" and paying $148,000 in one-dollar bills to Seymour Weiss and ex-Gov. Leche of Louisiana. Leche and Weiss pleaded guilty, were imprisoned, but Burford managed to block extradition from Texas to Louisiana, and now has been rewarded with a lieutenant-colonelcy in the U. S. army, while youngsters who fought the battle of Spain remain privates.

Ernie Praises Shovel As Defense Weapon, Also Explains Why He Doesn't Wear Helmet.

SOMEWHERE IN TUNISIA—The central part of Tunisia is a sandy-colored, desertlike country. It is made up of mountain ridges with wide, flat, fertile valleys between them. The ridges have fir trees high up, but the valleys are without vegetation except for the crops and a knee-high growth of bush.

Consequently, the valleys are poor places for hiding big motorized troop concentrations. About the only thing that affords any natural cover is an olive grove or a cactus patch. These cactus patches—some of them grow wild, and others are planted in rows just like any other crop. The plants are shoulder-high, and have big thick leaves of the prickly-pear type. They have thorns an inch long, vicious and cruel.

The cactus is grown for camel feed. And camels actually come up and eat them off the bush. How they do it I don't know for the stickers are as hard as steel needles, and they don't bend. But the camels don't seem to mind.

Every soldier over here has learned to tread cautiously through a cactus patch. For these stickers can cause you grave trouble. They frequently start bad infections. I saw a soldier one day being taken to the rear with his arm swollen so badly he had to carry it on a sort of rack.

And I myself had a small experience with them. I'd noticed for several days that my right knee was so sore I could hardly put any weight on it when I got down to roll up my bedroll. But I supposed I'd just bruised it on a rock, and didn't pay much attention.

It wasn't until I returned to the city and took off my clothes for the first time in weeks that I saw there was an angry-looking lump on my knee. So like a country boy I squeezed it, and out popped a cactus thorn half an inch long.

In a day or two the soreness was gone. Anybody else would probably have lost his leg, but you see I lead such a pure life that my blood is clear and strong and noble and all that stuff period.

THE SOLDIERS all laughed when I started out to battle armed only with a shovel. That does seem a ridiculous instrument to carry to the wars, but I'm a pretty smart guy, you know, and I'd figured this thing all out ahead of time.

My calculations were verified when I got up front where the boys actually know what the zing of a bullet sounds like. None of them laughed. Because brother, when you're up there where the dive-bombers play, digging becomes instinctive.

I've heard of dive-bombings so severe that soldiers lying in shallow trenches would try to dig deeper with their fingernails. And I know of many a man who is alive today because he happened to be near an empty foxhole some previous warrior had dug. So long live the shovel!

* * *

THERE seems to be a sort of unwritten law that full colonels and generals always act nonchalant when in danger. Most colonels and generals don't wear their steel helmets in battle. I thought for a while it was an unbreakable tradition, but I have seen a few colonels and generals wearing them.

I don't wear mine, incidentally. But that's not because I'm nonchalant. It's because I got rattled and forgot and left it lying under a truck one night when we were retreating.

WHEN you drive over a Tunisian road the morning after a big night convoy has passed, you see occasional trucks and tanks that have run off the road in the blackout.

I remember one morning counting two trucks and three tanks hanging over the edge in a distance of 45 miles. Nothing seemed to be damaged, and wreckers would soon have them out. One tank had run off a concrete bridge and dropped about ten feet into the dry stream-bed below. It lay there smack upside down.

It was just after daylight, and we stopped to see if anybody were hurt. Everything was still and quiet around the tank. And then we saw, about 50 feet away, the whole crew stretched out on the sand, covered with their blankets, sound asleep while the morning sun beamed down on them. As peaceful a picture as you ever saw.

Dave Boone Says:

I'M ALL for stopping outlandish prices for meals in restaurants, hotels, taverns bars, etc., but I'm mighty skeptical about this new OPA move to put ceilings on prices in these eating places. A chicken pie at Tony's lunch at 45 cents may really be more of a crime than a chicken pie which a high class restaurant puts out at $1.25.

* * *

And unless the OPA thinks that a steak is a steak no matter where you get it, how is it going to fix a price for steak and onions that will work out either in a dog wagon or the best restaurant in town?

* * *

The test of its seriousness to a lot of people will be whether it acts in the matter of things like coffee, milk and orange juice. A lot of restaurants charge so much for coffee that you could turn it down on the ground it doesn't bubble. And down in Washington a senator reports paying $1.20 to have a quart of milk sent to his room.

* * *

But it's the price hotels charge for orange juice that always gets me. Even if you found a hotel in the midst of its own orange grove it would sock you from 30 to 60 cents for a large glass.

* * *

I wish the OPA would take time out to do something about the common potato. They are asking ninety cents a peck in some eastern states today. If Prentiss Brown wants the public to have much faith in him he'd better forget about restaurants for a few minutes and help the average man get a spud.
